In Memoriam

In the span of two weeks in July, the Phillies family lost three longtime baseball men – a player, a coach and a scout – who all left a profound impact on the Phillies organization.

Former catcher Mike Ryan spent 16 years (1980-95) as the Phillies' bullpen coach, which was the longest tenure in club history until his former teammate and friend John Vukovich broke that record in 2004. Ryan remains the only man in Phillies history to coach for three World Series teams (1980, 1983 and 1993).

Tony Taylor was one of the most popular Phillies of his generation. He spent 15 seasons with the club over two stints and had played more games at second base than anyone in team history until Chase Utley broke his record.

Bart Braun served his final nine years in the game as a scout for the Phillies. Widely considered one of the best in his field, Braun spent countless hours scouring the globe for baseball talent and would sometimes find it in the most unique places.

OWNERSHIP

The Phillies is a limited partnership formed in 1981. Tri-Play and Double Play are equal partners while Pat Gillick and the Montgomery family own the remaining interests. No partner owns a majority of the team.

A REFRESHING WAY TO CHEER

If you have risk factors like heart disease or diabetes and raised triglycerides ( $\geq 150$  mg/dL)

the future is

INDICATION AND IMPORTANT SAFETY INFORMATION

WHAT IS VASCEPA?

VASCEPA is a prescription medicine used:

- along with certain medicines (statins) to reduce the risk of heart attack, stroke and certain types of heart issues requiring hospitalization in adults with heart (cardiovascular) disease, or diabetes and 2 or more additional risk factors for heart disease.
- along with a low-fat and low-cholesterol diet to lower high levels of triglycerides (fats) in adults.

It is not known if VASCEPA changes your risk of having inflammation of your pancreas (pancreatitis).

It is not known if VASCEPA is safe and effective in children.

IMPORTANT SAFETY INFORMATION

WHO SHOULD NOT TAKE VASCEPA?

- Do not take VASCEPA if you are allergic to icosapent ethyl or any of the ingredients in VASCEPA.

WHAT ARE THE POSSIBLE SIDE EFFECTS OF VASCEPA?

VASCEPA may cause serious side effects, including:

- Heart rhythm problems (atrial fibrillation and atrial flutter). Heart rhythm problems which can be serious and cause hospitalization have happened in people who take VASCEPA, especially in people who have heart (cardiovascular) disease or diabetes with a risk factor for heart (cardiovascular) disease, or who have had heart rhythm problems in the past. Tell your doctor if you get any symptoms of heart rhythm problems such as feeling as if your heart is beating fast and irregular, lightheadedness, dizziness, shortness of breath, chest discomfort or you faint.
- Possible allergic reactions if you are allergic to fish or shellfish. Stop taking VASCEPA and tell your doctor right away or get emergency medical help if you have any signs or symptoms of an allergic reaction.
- Bleeding. Serious bleeding can happen in people who take VASCEPA. Your risk of bleeding may increase if you are also taking a blood thinner medicine.

Celebrate 25% risk reduction with VASCEPA® when added to a statin*

*In a study, patients treated with VASCEPA had fewer cardiovascular events (17.2%) compared to those who took placebo (22%).

Taking statins, exercising, and eating right can lower your risk of a heart attack or stroke, but not as much as you may think. Prescription VASCEPA can also reduce your risk.

VASCEPA is clinically proven to offer 25% less risk from heart attack and stroke when added to a statin.

Ask your doctor about VASCEPA today.

WHAT ARE THE POSSIBLE SIDE EFFECTS OF VASCEPA? (cont.)

If you have liver problems and are taking VASCEPA, your doctor should do blood tests during treatment.

The most common side effects of VASCEPA include:

- Muscle and joint pain
- Swelling of the hands, legs, or feet
- Constipation
- Gout
- Heart rhythm problems (atrial fibrillation)

These are not all the possible side effects of VASCEPA.

Call your doctor for medical advice about side effects.

You may report adverse events (i.e. side effects) or product complaints by calling 1-855-VASCEPA (1-855-827-2372), emailing AmarinMI@druginfo.com, or calling the FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

Tell your doctor if you take medicines that affect your blood clotting (anticoagulants or blood thinners).

PATIENT INFORMATION

VASCEPA® (pronounced vas-EE-puh) (icosapent ethyl) capsules

What is VASCEPA?

VASCEPA is a prescription medicine used along with certain medicines (statins) to reduce the risk of heart attack, stroke, and certain types of heart issues requiring hospitalization in adults with heart (cardiovascular) disease, or diabetes and 2 or more additional risk factors for heart disease. It's also used along with a low-fat and low-cholesterol diet to lower high levels of triglycerides (fats) in adults.

It is not known if VASCEPA changes your risk of having inflammation of your pancreas (pancreatitis).

It is not known if VASCEPA is safe and effective in children.

Do not take VASCEPA if you are allergic to icosapent ethyl or any of the ingredients in VASCEPA. See the end of this summary for a complete list of ingredients in VASCEPA.

Before taking VASCEPA, tell your doctor about all of your medical conditions, including if you:

- have diabetes.
- have a low thyroid problem (hypothyroidism).
- have a liver problem.
- have a pancreas problem.
- are allergic to fish or shellfish. It is not known if people who are allergic to fish or shellfish are also allergic to VASCEPA.
- are pregnant, or planning to become pregnant. It is not known if VASCEPA will harm your unborn baby.
- are breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. VASCEPA can pass into your breast milk, and may harm your baby. Talk to your doctor about the best way to feed your baby if you take VASCEPA.

Tell your doctor about all the medicines you take, including prescription and over-the-counter medicines, vitamins, and dietary or herbal supplements.

VASCEPA can interact with certain other medicines that you are taking.

Especially tell your doctor if you take medicines that affect your blood clotting (anticoagulants or blood thinners).

How should I take VASCEPA?

- Take VASCEPA exactly as your doctor tells you to take it.
- Do not change your dose or stop taking VASCEPA without talking to your doctor.
- Do not take more capsules than what is prescribed by your doctor.
  - If you are prescribed the 0.5 gram capsules, you should not take more than 8 capsules each day with food.
  - If you are prescribed the 1 gram capsules, you should not take more than 4 capsules each day with food.
- Take VASCEPA capsules whole. Do not break, crush, dissolve, or chew VASCEPA capsules before swallowing.
- If you miss a dose of VASCEPA, take it as soon as you remember. However, if you miss one day of VASCEPA, do not double your dose when you take it.
- Your doctor may start you on a diet that is low in saturated fat, cholesterol, carbohydrates, and low in added sugars before giving you VASCEPA. Stay on this diet while taking VASCEPA.
- Your doctor may do blood tests to check your triglyceride and other lipid levels while you take VASCEPA.

What are the possible side effects of VASCEPA?

VASCEPA may cause serious side effects, including:

- Heart rhythm problems (atrial fibrillation and atrial flutter). Heart rhythm problems which can be serious and cause hospitalization have happened in people who take VASCEPA, especially in people who have heart (cardiovascular) disease or diabetes with a risk factor for heart (cardiovascular) disease, or who have had heart rhythm problems in the past. Tell your doctor if you get any symptoms of heart rhythm problems such as feeling as if your heart is beating fast and irregular, lightheadedness, dizziness, shortness of breath, chest discomfort, or you faint.
- Possible allergic reactions if you are allergic to fish or shellfish. Stop taking VASCEPA and tell your doctor right away or get emergency medical help if you have any signs or symptoms of an allergic reaction.
- Bleeding. Serious bleeding can happen in people who take VASCEPA. Your risk of bleeding may increase if you are also taking a blood thinner medicine.

If you have liver problems and are taking VASCEPA, your doctor should do blood tests during treatment.

The most common side effects of VASCEPA include: muscle and joint pain; swelling of the hands, legs, or feet; constipation; gout; and heart rhythm problems (atrial fibrillation).

These are not all the possible side effects of VASCEPA. Call your doctor for medical advice about side effects. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

How should I store VASCEPA?

- Store VASCEPA at room temperature between 68° to 77° F (20° to 25° C).
- Safely throw away medicine that is out of date or no longer needed.

Keep VASCEPA and all medicine out of the reach of children.

General information about the safe and effective use of VASCEPA.

Medicines are sometimes prescribed for purposes other than those listed in a Patient Information leaflet. Do not use VASCEPA for a condition for which it was not prescribed. Do not give VASCEPA to other people, even if they have the same symptoms that you have. It may harm them. You can ask your pharmacist or healthcare provider for information about VASCEPA that is written for health professionals.

What are the ingredients in VASCEPA?

Active ingredient: icosapent ethyl

Inactive ingredients: tocopherol, gelatin, glycerin, maltitol, sorbitol, and purified water

Wharton Global Youth Program

Wharton Summer High School Programs

Residential experiences for students currently enrolled in grades 9–11. Led by Wharton faculty and instructional staff, these programs explore topics that align with Wharton research and teaching.

Knowledge@Wharton High School

The only online business journal introducing high school students to global business, entrepreneurship, and leadership.

Wharton Academic Year Programs

Either online or in-person, giving participants the chance to continue their high school studies while also exploring various fields of interest within business.

Custom Programs for Organizations

Partner with Wharton to build customized educational programming on campus or around the globe for a pre-collegiate student audience or educators.

Resources for Educators

Wharton Global Youth Program provides resources and training for teachers both inside and outside the high school classroom, including professional development opportunities and teaching tools.

The Wharton Global Youth Program mobilizes the extensive opportunities of the Wharton academic community to educate, inform and inspire pre-collegiate students to explore business practices, analyze the world's complex challenges, and take the needed steps to become leaders who will transform the global economy.

BEACH, BEACH AND MORE BEACH.

35 Miles of Pure Paradise.

The eternal optimist in each of us still has plenty to look forward to. Like unused vacation days, long afternoons spent on the beach, and nights out with friends. And when the time is right, we invite you to stretch your legs and catch some rays on the sugar white sand and warm Gulf waters of America's Best Beaches. Just another reason we know there are brighter days ahead.

THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME

The Catholic University of America is proud to call Washington, D.C., home. We are a popular choice for students along the Northeast Corridor seeking a residential college experience in the nation's capital. We make the most of our location. You'll find us interning on the Hill, performing at the Kennedy Center, studying stars at NASA Goddard, taking in the museums, and catching a game at the ballpark (where you can cheer for your home team when they're in town). CatholicU is a leading research university with a vibrant student-life experience and 25 Division III teams, and it's all on the largest, greenest campus in one of the most exciting cities in the world. That's our "home field advantage."

THE CATHOLIC
OF AMERICA

We invite you to tour our campus in person or online.

Joe Girardi brings his winning pedigree to the Phillies

BY PAUL HAGEN

Jerry Girardi, father of five, was a mechanic in the Air Force and a Korean War veteran.

Not surprising, then, that he and his wife Angela raised their children in a structured environment. Not surprising, either, that each of the kids entered professions that parents in East Peoria, Ill., in those days dreamed of for their children. Their two older sons became doctors. Their only daughter became a mathematics professor. Their youngest became an accountant.

Their fourth-born, Joe, graduated from Northwestern University in 1986 with a degree in industrial engineering but made his mark in baseball. He enjoyed a 15-year big league catching career with the Chicago Cubs, Colorado Rockies, New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals that included three World Series championships with the Yankees. Following his playing career, he became National League Manager of the Year with the Florida Marlins in 2006, then spent 10 seasons as the skipper of the Yankees, leading the team to the postseason six times, including a World Series title in 2009.

Now his mission is to replicate that sort of success in his first year as Phillies manager. And here's the thing: The values he learned from his parents almost perfectly overlay the culture he tries to create in the clubhouse.

Each sibling had a row of green beans to pick in the garden. Each had to mow a section of the one-acre yard. Each had to help put the grass clippings in the soil to help keep it moist. Joe had a paper route, delivering the Peoria Journal Star, from the time he was seven until he was a freshman in high school. On the weekends he helped his father, who supplemented his income as a part-time bricklayer.

"We all had our chores and responsibilities," Girardi said, sitting in his office at Citizens Bank Park. "My father believed in discipline, but I don't think it was military discipline. He had a strong belief in work ethic. We all had jobs and had to do our part."

Turns out, those same principles neatly apply to millionaire ballplayers as well.

NOT YOUR AVERAGE JOE

"It's one big family where we all have our responsibility and our role," he explained. "If one role breaks down, it affects the whole family. So you've got to be good at what you do. You've got to trust that if your brother says he's going to pick you up at 6 o'clock from practice that he's there. You've got to trust that your teammate is going to do his job and do his work and his preparation."

"IT'S NEVER ABOUT YOU, IT'S ALWAYS ABOUT THEM. YOU ALWAYS TAKE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE BAD, YOU GIVE CREDIT FOR THE GOOD... IT'S ABOUT EARNING THE TRUST OF THE PLAYERS, THAT YOU WANT WHAT'S BEST FOR THEM AS MEN AND AS BASEBALL PLAYERS. IT'S NOT ONE OR THE OTHER, IT'S BOTH."

JOE GIRARDI

Girardi keeps his hair short and neat. He projects precision and preparation. As a player, he was named team captain many times and also served as the Cubs' player union representative. Leadership seems to come naturally to him.

"I've always loved being in a responsibility role," he said.

Former Phillies manager Pete Mackanin tells a story. He was Girardi's first professional manager in the single-A Midwest League in 1986, watched him develop as the Cubs minor league coordinator in 1987 and then was his manager again both at Triple-A Iowa as well as with Maracaibo in the Venezuelan Winter League.

(Asked to list the biggest influences on his baseball life, Girardi mentioned Mackanin along with Dave Rodgers, his first travel ball coach; Dave Lang, his high school coach and math teacher; Ron Wellman, his coach at Northwestern; plus Don Zimmer, Don Baylor and Hall of Famers Tony La Russa and Joe Torre.)

Anyway, Mackanin remembers Girardi as being quiet and reserved when he first broke in, remembers having heart-to-heart talks with him the following year when Girardi seriously considered quitting baseball, remembers how he saw that start to change in Venezuela.

The Aguilas del Zulia had a game scheduled for 11 a.m. One of their best players barely made it to the stadium in time. From all appearances, he was badly hung over. It was a scorching hot day and, to make matters worse, the visiting team put up six runs in the top of the first.

"Joe comes to the bench to start the bottom of the first inning and he immediately goes over to this player, who was sitting on the bench with his hat over his eyes, and Joe lambasted him," Mackanin said. "He said, 'Let me tell you something. If you ever do this again, I'm going to talk to all the American players and we're all going to go home. If you don't want to play, we're not going to play.'"

"That's when I noticed that he became a little less to himself. He became more of a leader with the players. He was a winner. That's the thing that stood out to me the most, that he was dead set on winning. That's what it was all about."

Leadership can also be demonstrated calmly under challenging circumstances.

When the Cubs were about to play their first game after 9/11, it was Girardi who was asked to address the crowd on Heroes Night.

Less than a year later, on June 22, 2002, then Cubs president Andy MacPhail was leaving his office at Wrigley Field to go to his booth for a sold-out, nationally televised game against the St. Louis Cardinals when the phone rang. On the caller ID, he recognized the cell number of St. Louis general manager Walt Jocketty. He assumed it was about a last-minute ticket request from the team's ownership group.

Instead, Jocketty delivered stunning news. Cardinals right-hander Darryl Kile had been found dead in his hotel room just hours before the scheduled first pitch.

MacPhail, who is now the Phillies president, hurried to the Cardinals clubhouse. As he walked in, he could hear players sobbing. "The manager's office is to the right and there's La Russa. His uniform is just a mess. It's half off. And he pushes the lineup card to me and he says, 'You win. We forfeit,'" he recalled. "And I'm like, 'Tony, put that thing away. That's not why I'm here.' But just one look at the clubhouse, there's no way they could play."

The tension was overwhelming. Nobody had been able to reach Kile's wife, Flynn. FOX Sports had to be notified. And somebody had to tell the crowd there would be no game that day without being able to explain why. "It was probably the most stressful 10 minutes of my baseball life," MacPhail said.

He called Commissioner Bud Selig, who agreed to deal with the network, then headed to the home clubhouse. "How do you tell 40,000 people on a sunny Cardinals-Cubs afternoon that we're not playing this game and not tell them why? I'm really struggling with how to do it," he said.

The answer, of course, was Girardi. "The hardest thing I've ever had to do in the game of baseball," he said.

When he came out, the entire Cubs team followed him. "Excuse me," Girardi said into the microphone that had been set up on the field. "I thank you for your patience. We regret to inform you, because of a tragedy in the Cardinal family, that the Commissioner has canceled the game today."

His voice cracked at the end. Somebody yelled from the seats, demanding a fuller explanation. "Please be respectful," he said, now just the slightest hint of an edge in his voice. "You will find out eventually what has happened. And I ask that you say a prayer for the St. Louis Cardinal family."

A warm round of applause followed. Girardi had struck just the right note. "Amazingly, there was not one iota of unhappiness from the fans," MacPhail said. "They stayed there for probably about another 30 minutes, drank their beers, sat in the sun. And then eventually worked their way out."

"It was tough, but it does demonstrate the level of trust I had in Joe. He couldn't have been better. And the fact that the entire team, unscripted by us, would come and follow him, it was really quite a scene. One that I hadn't really thought of trying to orchestrate. They did it on their own, which made it that much more impactful, because it was genuine."

Asked what he believes is the essence of leadership, Girardi chose an unusual word. "Servanthood," he said. "It's never about you, it's always about them."

You always take responsibility for the bad, you give credit for the good. The most important thing in a successful relationship is trust. So it's about earning the trust of the players, that you want what's best for them as men and as baseball players. It's not one or the other, it's both."

Again, that all circles back to his upbringing. After mentioning all the coaches and managers he'd learned from, he wanted to make a point.

"But I think the best managers I had were my parents," he said. "Everything they taught me. The love they had in them and the giving spirit they had in them. The toughness that I saw in my dad was just so important.

"They taught us to always get back up and don't let anything slow you down. Not that you run over people. But I had a mom who was given three to six months to live with cancer and she lived six years. And she never stopped working and never stopped being a mom and an educator. She didn't let anything hold her back."

As Phillies manager, Joe Girardi doesn't intend to let anything hold him back.

"I THINK THE BEST MANAGERS I HAD WERE MY PARENTS. EVERYTHING THEY TAUGHT ME. THE LOVE THEY HAD IN THEM AND THE GIVING SPIRIT THEY HAD IN THEM."

Phillies employees stepped up to the plate to help restart the 2020 season

BY KENNY AYRES AND JIM HOGAN

To organize the logistics of playing a normal Phillies season takes countless hours of behind-the-scenes work from hundreds of employees.

This season, the stakes were raised as COVID-19 forced all of baseball to get creative in an effort to bring the game back to a sports-starved country while also keeping all of the people involved with baseball safe and healthy. Numerous Phillies employees have added some very different bullet points to their job descriptions, and in the following pages a few of them discuss the unique challenges, changes and ideas that helped get the Phillies back on the field in early July.

Phillies Director of Operations/Security Sal DeAngelis has been working for the club since 1994, and this year has faced unprecedented security challenges in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic.

"Nobody thought they would ever have to deal with a pandemic, but we are well versed in the benefits of wearing a mask, proper physical distancing and the importance of washing your hands. While we were still concerned with ensuring that everyone in the ballpark was safe and secure, we also were tasked with mitigating this new risk as well. Even things that were never on anybody's radar had to be discussed. For instance, we had to change our mindset about the way that we walk around the ballpark. The players and coaches utilized the main concourse for training and the Diamond Club for dining in an effort to maintain physical distancing. Most staff members were not granted access to these areas so there were alternate routes set to traverse the building. Little things that you would normally never think about.

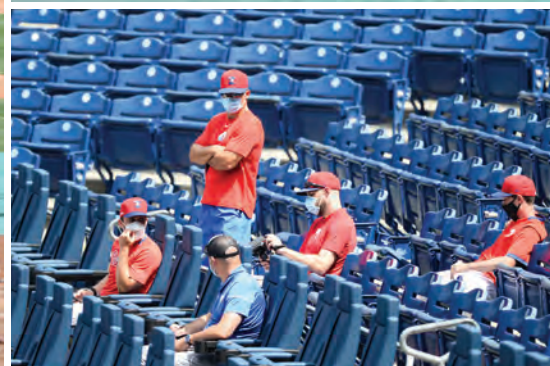

"One of our top priorities early in the process was to know who was in the ballpark and which rooms they accessed. A daily manifest allowed us the ability to schedule cleaning efforts and preserve valuable sanitizing resources. Employees working during Summer Camp or the regular season were required to wear a credential with a unique bar code that verifies access to the ballpark and restricted areas. MLB only allowed a limited number of staff members in the ballpark at one time, so a coordinated effort was very important for contact tracing in the event of positive cases.

SUMMER CAMP

"One of the most challenging and unique endeavors during Summer Camp from a security standpoint was ensuring the safety of our players, coaches and staff as they trained at FDR Park. The fields we utilized weren't enclosed, so we had to erect a secure perimeter, and when players started practicing we protected the fence line with staff and Philadelphia Police officers. It was the total opposite of what we are used to in a major league facility, where everything is so separate and protected when it comes to access to the on-field personnel. Our fans that showed up were great and very respectful and in turn got to see some of their favorite players in a very unique location.

"Probably the most creative thing done in our realm was the repurposing of front office employees whose regular job duties might have been minimal for one reason or another. These employees took on a number of roles that were needed to help things run smoothly on a daily basis, from grounds crew efforts to scanning credentials, providing security and serving as parking lot attendants. I was tasked with managing that program, and it was so cool to see everyone from interns to vice presidents volunteering for anything we needed and getting the job done well. The resiliency and adaptability of our organization is amazing. Everyone found a way to be creative with their jobs. Even past the staff that volunteered with me, there was lots of employee engagement, drive-through food distribution, blood drives, community-based COVID-19 testing in our parking lots, concerts that are live-streamed... the list goes on. I am extremely proud to work for The Phillies."

Mike Boekholder, the club's director of field operations, joined the Phillies in July 2003. In a regular season, he is responsible for the day-to-day care of the playing field at

Citizens Bank Park, supported by a full staff. But with this year's Summer Camp, he had to prepare both the ballpark and the local youth fields at FDR Park, while relying on a skeleton crew and front office volunteers.

"Major league ballparks are not set up for spring training-type operations. We don't have the luxury of space where you can spread many players out all over a complex, like in Clearwater. Instead, we were primarily using the playing field at Citizens Bank Park with the auxiliary fields at FDR Park at our Phillies Youth Academy. All in all, it worked about as well as you could expect. The coaching staff worked very closely with us to stagger report times and move things around as best we could. The weather also helped.

"When I first started hearing rumblings that teams may choose to host Summer Camp in their home cities, I immediately spoke with Howard Smith, my boss, about FDR. He agreed it was smart to start taking some preliminary steps to get things ready just in case. We shifted around some fertilizer and other products so we could ramp up the maintenance regimen mainly on the Showcase Field. We ended up working increased split crew shifts between CBP and UYA. That allowed us to get some issues taken care of, rebuild the field mound and get home plate in better condition. Once the official word was sent out in mid-June that we would indeed use FDR, we ordered some infield mix material, laser-graded the infield on Showcase, rebuilt one of the bullpen mounds, and rebuilt the mound on Ashburn Field.

"Ashburn Field was used for pitchers' fielding practice most days, while Showcase was used for actual infield work, baserunning and batting practice. We did end up having to do some basic safety upgrades to accommodate major league players like adding some additional netting behind the bullpen mounds and installing padding on our on-field batting cage. Other than that, it was a pretty seamless process.

"The first time Joe Girardi saw the facility he was extremely happy with the condition of the playing surface. I think that made the decision to do whatever they needed to do at FDR pretty easy for everyone concerned.

"Getting our staff here in Philadelphia into a daily routine for a spring training operation was something we were not used to. To be able to adjust to the reduced staffing level and still manage to run operations at two locations on three fields is a testament to the hard work and dedication my staff put forth during this entire situation. They pulled it off and provided top-quality surfaces every day for our players.

"Using the volunteers worked pretty well. Many of the guys on the grounds staff had worked in minor league baseball prior to working at CBP, so they are all well versed on working with front office staffs to do things like pulling tarp. That's normal operating procedure in the minors. Working with Sal DeAngelis to coordinate the volunteers was the most challenging aspect of that. I think many people quickly found out that grounds crew is a job that requires great flexibility.

"The biggest change that occurred for me personally was not having any off days for about an entire month. That's not something we are used to. We look forward to the ballclub leaving after a homestand so we can catch up on normal maintenance like aerating, topdressing, fertilizing, etc. With Summer Camp going on, you had to squeeze necessary maintenance tasks into the day either before or after workouts, all the while working around the forecast. That proved to not only be challenging from a logistical standpoint, but it definitely starts to take a toll on the crew as well."

Dong Lien is the Phillies' assistant strength and conditioning coach in his second stint with the club. In a normal season, he and head strength coach Paul

Fournier implement training programs for 26 active players in close quarters in the weight room. This year, they had to balance a 60-player camp and all the health and safety protocols to make sure the players were able to get into and stay in the best shape possible while also maintaining physical distance from one another.

"From the start, right after health and safety, utilizing as much space as possible within the stadium to allow players to continue their work was the most important thing we had to figure out. During Summer Camp, we took over the concourse and designated two areas primarily for prep work, activation and stretching. We relocated equipment and ordered some new items as well to ensure the stations were properly stocked for the players. In addition, we expanded the smaller visiting weight room into the adjoining hallway to create additional space for players to train and allow outside air to be circulated throughout.

"One of the things we really had to adapt to was cleaning every single item used by a player each and every time it was used. Bands, medicine balls, dumbbells – all the things that are commonly shared throughout a training session became one-time use only. It also took some time to adapt to the new schedule. In the past, much of the daily routine consisted of a 'free-flowing' format when it came to weight room activities. Then, all of the sudden, players and coaches had to be cognizant of each other's time and space. Due to social distancing requirements and staggering groups, the number of occupants in an area at a given time had to be considered. As with anything new, it took time to adjust, but with regular communication the players adapted quickly and worked efficiently. Everybody was great in understanding that safety, cleanliness, and distancing all played into the decision making as to when you reported, stretched, took batting practice and lifted weights.

Luckily, with additional space on the concourse, it allowed groups to be staggered and it also minimized large gatherings in the weight room, allowing for normal weight training routines to be continued. Communicating regularly with our players was very important right from the beginning, and it was a shared task.

"Even before Summer Camp, we were working to make sure the players had the best possible opportunity to keep up with their gym work. Gaining insight on what equipment they had available to them on their own and what they needed was important in navigating their training program from afar. Identifying and encouraging the continuation of individual focus work during this time was important, along with training and conditioning regularly. On occasion, a program change was required due to quarantining needs. All methods of communication were exercised, from Zoom calls, to phone calls, to messaging via several platforms.

"Speaking of Zoom, for me personally, I gained incredible experience early in the spring that I carried on through Summer Camp and the start of the season. I held regular Zoom training sessions with the front office to help bring some fitness tips and workouts to our employees while everyone was at home. It was something I normally would have never thought of and was so happy that I could lead it. Being a virtual trainer to the front office staff was and still is a bright light for me during these difficult times. I am so grateful for the opportunity to provide a virtual space for Phillies staff to stay connected and train together. I have made new friends during a time in which I wouldn't normally have and for this reason, with proper planning and timing, we continue 'live workouts' twice a week, whenever possible, from wherever possible."

Jameson Hall, who started working for the Phillies in 2008, has served as the club's coordinator of team travel since 2018. As was to be expected, Summer

Camp added many new layers to his job responsibilities. Months after spring training in Clearwater was halted, Hall was tasked with helping stage a Summer Camp in Philadelphia.

"The biggest challenge was how quickly we needed to get our team back into town. We tried to stagger arrivals with staff, pitchers and position players so that we could space out the initial intake medical screening.

"The best thing that happened to me during Summer Camp was picking up a quality teammate. Mike Roche, who works in our promotions department, eagerly joined the team travel operation for camp and the 2020 season. Mike jumped right in working 17-hour days at the start of camp. This couldn't have been done without him.

"Normally for spring training we have one or two report times per day. For Summer Camp some days we had 12 different player report times to help practice and promote social distancing. I communicate often with our players, but there were a lot more text messages being sent during Summer Camp. Also, we had several shuttles during the day between Citizens Bank Park to our Urban Youth Academy, which was our satellite field about a mile away. We had to keep passenger logs for each shuttle.

"We had a truly wonderful partner for our team hotel. They made a unique Summer Camp comfortable and pleasant for our players and staff. Our transportation partners were incredible as well. They communicated with us and adjusted to our needs at all hours of the night. I cannot express how grateful I am for our partners.

"Summer Camp would normally start early with a check-in at the team hotel where we would talk through the daily schedule with our bus drivers. During the day when the players were working out, we would work ahead on essentially re-planning this 60-game 2020 season. Once the workout would end, we would check in with coaches on the schedule for the next day and start communicating this to our players and transportation partners.

"Summer Camp strengthened my belief that Joe Girardi is truly a special leader. He was so in tune with everyone and understood how each of our individual roles was changing."

JUST WHAT THE DOCTOR ORDERED

Ten years ago, Roy Halladay made the most of his long-awaited postseason debut

BY PAUL HAGEN

Brian Anderson was the TBS play-by-play broadcaster for Game 1 of the 2010 NLDS, the Phillies versus the Cincinnati Reds. And as the home starting pitcher rocked into his wind-up for the first pitch, Anderson delivered his final pregame observation.

"Roy Halladay," he intoned. "About ready to cash in on something he's waited for his entire career."

Two hours and 34 minutes later, those words turned out to be both incredibly prophetic and absurdly inadequate. Cash in? At the age of 33, after a dozen stellar seasons with the Toronto Blue Jays, Halladay had chased his dream of pitching in the playoffs all the way to Citizens Bank

Park. And now, on the overcast evening of Oct. 6, at the end of a personal rainbow, he found his baseball pot of gold by becoming just the second player in history to throw a postseason no-hitter.

Ten seasons ago. Hard to believe, Harry. Earlier that year, on May 29, he'd pitched a perfect game against the Florida Marlins. Later that fall he'd unanimously win his second Cy Young Award. Even against that backdrop, this dominant performance stands out like a blinking neon light.

It's been said you should be careful what you wish for because it might come true. Halladay took that cautionary axiom and turned it on its head. He had quietly pushed the rebuilding Jays to trade him to a contender. He contributed mightily as the Phillies won their fourth straight division crown in 2010. And then, when that resulted in the opportunity he'd wanted so badly for so long, he didn't whiff. He didn't foul it off. He figuratively knocked it out of the park.

We can only imagine what he would say about all this a decade later. He tragically died on Nov. 7, 2017, when the ICON A5 amphibious plane he was piloting crashed into the Gulf of Mexico.

So to mark the anniversary, here's an oral history from some who witnessed the remarkable string of events that led Harry Leroy "Doc" Halladay to that mound on that night and the fairy tale ending that resulted, with all identifying titles reflecting the position they held at the time.

In an alternate universe, Halladay could have spent his entire career in Toronto, where he'd blossomed into one of baseball's best pitchers and was revered by the fans. In 2008, the Jays had their third straight winning season, including going 51-37 after Cito Gaston replaced John Gibbons as manager.

But even before the team slumped to 75-87 in 2009, there were indications he might have to leave the only organization he'd ever played for if he wanted to pitch meaningful games in October.

Richard Griffin, baseball columnist at the Toronto Star: "Before that [2009] season, we heard that he'd been told by [General Manager] J.P. Ricciardi that the club was going in another direction."

Ruben Amaro Jr., Phillies general manager: "There were some whispers out there. Then it became pretty clear, I think during the All-Star break [in St. Louis]. I don't know if he actually mentioned something out loud about wanting to be on a contending team, being open-minded to that, but that buzz was out there."

Griffin: "Doc had given them a break in his previous extension. Alex Anthopoulos took over [from Ricciardi after that season]. The Winter Meetings that year were in Indianapolis. That was when we talked to Alex and found out they were going to be actively looking to trade Roy."

Amaro: "I recall having the conversation with [team president David Montgomery] when I became general manager. It may have even been before I became GM. I said, 'If there's one guy that I could ever get as the GM here, it would be Roy Halladay.' So he was a little bit of the white whale for me."

Halladay had leverage. With one year left remaining on his current contract, he discreetly let the Blue Jays know that if they didn't trade him, he'd become a free agent after the upcoming season. In that scenario, they'd get nothing but a draft pick as compensation. Also, as a 10-year veteran who had spent the last five seasons with the same team, he had the right to veto any trade. Put it all together and he could all but pick his destination.

The Phillies came close to acquiring Halladay before the trade deadline in July but, when they couldn't agree with Ricciardi on what players would go to Toronto, Amaro pivoted and acquired left-hander Cliff Lee from the Cleveland Indians instead.

Griffin: "The options for trading partners began to shrink. I think the Angels were even included early. But realistically it became clear that he wanted to train near his [Tampa Bay area] home and he wanted to go to the postseason. So that limited it pretty much to the Phillies and the Yankees."

Amaro: "Let's just say, we did a lot of business with his representatives [Greg Landry and CAA Sports]. And it became clear through some of the whispers that this would be a great place for him.

"It sounded like he wanted to stay on the East Coast and play for a contender. I thought it would be difficult for Toronto to move the guy to [the division-rival] Yankees. So that made my thought process a little more aggressive, I guess. For us, it lined up very, very well. For him, I think it lined up well, too."

On Dec. 16, 2009, it was announced that Halladay had been traded to the Phillies for catcher Travis d'Arnaud, right-hander Kyle Drabek and outfielder Michael Taylor. Halladay had agreed to a three-year, $60 million extension.

At the same time, it was also announced that the Phils, in an effort to balance their payroll and restock the farm system, had traded Lee to the Seattle Mariners. Fans were unhappy Amaro didn't keep both aces, but the controversy abated as Halladay put together one of the best seasons a Phillies starter ever had. He went 21-10 with a 2.44 ERA, nine complete games and four shutouts while leading the majors with 250.2 innings pitched.

With a rotation that also included Cole Hamels and Roy Oswalt, the Phillies compiled the best record in baseball and rolled into the postseason to face the NL Central champion Reds. Cincinnati's lineup had combined to lead the NL in runs, homers, batting average and OPS.

Amaro: "The Reds had a heck of a lineup. It was [Joey] Votto and [Scott] Rolen and [Jay] Bruce, some guys who could really, really swing the bat."

Phillies pitching coach Rich Dubee: "Once you started to see the swings a really good-hitting Cincinnati Reds team was having off him, you knew he had very good stuff and definitely had his A game that night."

Phillies manager Charlie Manuel: "They had a good-hitting team, and he carved them up."

One unknown going in was how Halladay would react to finally reaching his goal of pitching in the postseason. Would he be too overamped to pitch his best?

Amaro: "I was a little revved up because I didn't know how Doc would handle pitching his first playoff game. He demanded so much of himself. He was such a perfectionist that you didn't know if he was going to get overexcited. I should have known better. His stuff was absolutely electric."

Manuel: "I definitely wanted to see how he was going to react. When you think about it, in the years he was with us, all he talked about was winning. He definitely came here to win a World Series."

"He was charged up that night. He might not have said a word in the dugout. I can't even remember him talking to Dubee. He usually didn't talk too much during the game, but he'd talk to Dubee sometimes about hitters or things to watch for or where he was at in his delivery, stuff like that. But that night, I can't remember him getting up to say anything to anybody, really."

Dubee: "I wasn't really concerned. It was pretty much like every other start. He comes out at his normal time. He warms up almost flawlessly. When he was healthy, it was just robotic-like as far as being able to repeat his delivery and command all his pitches. It was just a regular warm-up.

"I said, 'Have fun with it. It's your first one.'

"He had such great preparation. All the work he did in between his starts – probably all the work he did up to his first playoff start – it was all preparation for that moment. In the heat of battle, he was always prepared for that time. He was calm and relaxed and committed and trusted his stuff."

One thing was very different, though. He normally established the fastball early and then went to his breaking stuff as needed later in the game. On this night, he came out throwing more curves than usual right from the beginning.

That turned out to be the perfect antidote for a Reds team that had clearly decided to hunt fastballs early in the count. Reds leadoff hitter Brandon Phillips grounded out on the first pitch, which set a pattern.

Phillies radio analyst Larry Andersen: "The thing that stands out to me was that he started out throwing a lot of curveballs. It was the first time I saw him break it out early in the game. A lot of times he didn't have anybody in scoring position until the fourth or fifth inning, so you wouldn't see it for four or five innings.

"I'm sure they had advance scouting reports and that would have been their philosophy. Don't even think about a curve ball. Eliminate that. Look for something hard early. For him to break [the curve] out then, I think it baffled them. For me, as a former pitcher, you can't help but see that."

Dubee: "He always had his plan. And I had my stuff I saw on video with Chooch [catcher Carlos Ruiz] and everything. We compiled it and put it together. There were times when, if he had a feel, he'd go more to curveball, change-up, whatever.

"He was very aware he had to slow them down because they were aggressive and they were a very good-hitting team. So the curveball usage, the split usage was more to protect the fastball, sinker and cutter. On that given night, I think he could have sat out there for a long time and they might never have gotten a hit."

Reds right fielder Jay Bruce: "When I faced him, I was aggressive, generally, throughout my career, because I knew he was going to throw strikes. I knew if you let him get ahead and control the at-bat, you were going to be in trouble."

Phillies right-hander Kyle Kendrick, who openly patterned himself after Halladay: "I think everyone knew they were aggressive. And I think everyone's game plan against him was to swing early. You didn't want to fall behind in the count.

"HE HAD SUCH GREAT PREPARATION. ALL THE WORK HE DID IN BETWEEN HIS STARTS – PROBABLY ALL THE WORK HE DID UP TO HIS FIRST PLAYOFF START – IT WAS ALL PREPARATION FOR THAT MOMENT. IN THE HEAT OF BATTLE, HE WAS ALWAYS PREPARED FOR THAT TIME. HE WAS CALM AND RELAXED AND COMMITTED AND TRUSTED HIS STUFF."

RICH DUBEE

So he used a lot of off-speed stuff to keep them off the fastball.

"He was locked in. He and Chooch always worked well together. He knew they were aggressive and wanted to hit the fastball early. Those guys didn't know what to do. As a fan, as a teammate, it was just really cool to be part of it."

A decade later, the Reds concede that Kendrick was right. They didn't really know what to do against Halladay that night.

Reds manager Dusty Baker: "I remember it was like no chance. [Phillies broadcaster] Gary Matthews had warned me. He said, 'You better get ready because Doc is something.' We didn't have much chance. Next thing I know it's the seventh inning. That's how easy he made it look."

Votto, who received 31 out of 32 first-place votes to win the NL Most Valuable Player Award that year: "He was always going to come right at you with his best stuff and he was going to give you very, very little to work with, and his stuff was excellent."

"I've only seen maybe five guys that are in that sort of category. You see a guy like Clayton Kershaw at his best. I could name maybe four or five, but they have the combination of career reputation and dominant stuff. It's only a few guys like that.

"I knew early that he was exceedingly sharp. I never think, 'Oh, someone is going to throw a no-hitter.' I think more along the lines of, 'Oh, this guy has dominant stuff today. He's really sharp. You have to be ready.' That sort of thing. No-hitters are built on luck. Not luck per se; obviously a pitcher can look like he has great stuff. But that being said, you have to get a little bit lucky."

Reds pitching coach Bryan Price: "It got to the point where we weren't even getting good swings. We had very little hard contact against him. There weren't a lot of great [defensive] plays I remember that kept the no-hitter intact."

"It was a big night for our team because we hadn't been in the postseason for 15 years. So we were pretty excited about that ballgame. But you just started to get that feeling that it was going to be really hard to score on him."

"I wasn't really thinking that he was going to throw a no-hitter in that type of a ballgame. But it just got to a point where I didn't know if we were going to be able to scratch out a run against him. The best thing we might be able to hope for was if they ended up making a move to go to the bullpen or something where we could just get excited about seeing someone other than Roy Halladay."

Bruce: "You knew he always had that kind of stuff when he stepped on the mound, but you didn't expect it in the playoffs. In his first playoff game. In the first playoff game I'd ever played in. It was just incredible. He was just himself to the umpteenth power that day. He was special, man. It was an incredible performance. You couldn't have drawn it up any more perfectly for him."

"You know there's the opportunity for [a no-hitter] as soon as he takes the field. But I don't remember thinking specifically, 'Man, this guy's really going to give it to us tonight.' During the game you don't think of the no-hitter specifically, but you know that you've got to forget what happened last inning and go to the next inning. But you knew it was going to be a tough night to push runs across the plate for sure."

Phillies broadcaster Chris Wheeler: "I came out of our clubhouse before the game that night. I was checking my phone for messages and, as I'm standing there, all of a sudden someone grabs me. It was [Reds third baseman and former Phillie] Scott Rolen."

"He wanted to talk about Halladay. He brought it up. 'Yeah, we're facing Halladay tonight. Jeez. I'll tell you one thing about him. He maybe gives you one pitch to hit in an at-bat, and you'd better hit it.'

"And then he said, 'And the other thing, which really ticks me off, is that Dubee taught him that [bleeping] change-up. Like he didn't have enough stuff to get us out. Now he's got this pitch, which just explodes.'

"I'm down there again after the game. I'm looking to my right. The timing is unbelievable. [Rolen] is walking by and he sees me and he stops and comes back and [gives an exaggerated shrug]."

Veteran umpire John Hirschbeck had a 41-year career, including 34 seasons in the big leagues. But this was the only time he was behind the plate for a no-hitter. He was two years old when Don Larsen of the Yankees pitched his perfect game against the Brooklyn Dodgers in the 1956 World Series. And now he can admit that even he got a bit caught up in the moment.

Hirschbeck: "I didn't realize it until the start of the fifth. You're working the playoffs. Anybody who tells you it's not different than a regular season game isn't telling you the truth. So you're concentrating and you want to do a good job. And I looked up at the start of the fifth and I'm like, 'Oh, my gosh. No one [on the Reds] has a hit yet.

"I've never told anyone this, but you know he always used to hop over the foul line? I had the ball in my hand and I tossed it to him. You know, like up in the air as he hopped over? And then I did that the rest of the game. It wasn't anything other than just tossing him the ball, but I made sure that I had one and I tossed it to him each inning. I guess now that I'm retired I can tell that story."

Hirschbeck wasn't the only one who gradually began to realize that something historic might be happening.

Manuel: "We were just sitting there watching. It was in the top of the seventh, after he got the first out, when I kind of thought to myself, 'He's got a good chance to throw a no-hitter.' And, of course, everybody in the dugout knew it, too. But they didn't say anything. They didn't want to jinx it."

Bench coach Pete Mackanin: "As the game progressed into the sixth or seventh inning, the thought that occurred to me was, 'Are you kidding? A possible no-hitter in the playoffs?' I didn't say a word to anybody. I didn't want to jinx it. I felt bad even thinking about it.

"The other thing that crossed my mind was that, after his perfect game in May, he bought all the coaches and players an engraved watch. (Laughing) I wondered, 'Gee, are we going to get another watch?'" Dubee: "For me, it wasn't until later on. I'd probably say somewhere in the seventh or eighth. I knew he was going to be good.

They were missing some baseballs by large margins. They had a really good lineup, but his stuff was just that good that night. You knew he was going to put up a quality start. Just how quality it was going to be, you had to wait until the end to see."

Hirschbeck: "I could tell [that he was throwing exceptionally well] after the first couple innings. Because, you know, you can't go by an inning or two. But after the first three innings, you just knew he was on his game. I mean, all the pitches were right there. It just seemed like, wow, his control was unbelievable. It reminded me of working Greg Maddux [games] at times."

Amaro: "If I'm not mistaken, that was the night that David Beckham was in the ballpark. He was there for some kind of exhibition for the new soccer stadium. My daughters were huge soccer fans, so in between innings they shot over to one of the suites and took a picture with him.

"I LOVED FACING ROY – NOT BECAUSE HE WAS EASY TO FACE, BUT BECAUSE HE WAS ROY HALLADAY AND YOU HAD TO BE COMPLETELY, ABSOLUTELY ALL IN OR ELSE YOU WERE OUT. YOU WERE PRETTY MUCH OUT, ANYWAY. BUT HE WAS ONE OF MY FAVORITE GUYS TO FACE BECAUSE OF THAT. BECAUSE OF THE COMPETITIVENESS. BECAUSE OF WHAT HE BROUGHT TO THE TABLE. HE WAS SOMEONE I HAD SUCH A GREAT DEAL OF RESPECT FOR."

JAY BRUCE

"He had to leave for some kind of meeting. So he left the ballpark in like the fourth inning. I found out later that when he found out that the no-hitter was still going in the seventh, he got his driver to bring him back to watch the end of the game."

With two outs in the top of the fifth, Bruce swung and missed at the first pitch, then took two balls. In the TBS booth, Anderson referenced the ongoing no-hitter without mentioning it directly. "First goal for the Reds is to get Roy Halladay in the stretch. He's been pitching out of the wind-up the entire game."

The count evened when Bruce swung and missed again, then he took two more balls and trotted to first. That turned out to be the only Cincinnati baserunner in the game.

Bruce: "The very unlikely and uncharacteristic walk. Especially against him. He didn't walk a lot of guys at all. The thing I remember most about the whole deal is we were a young team. I was a young player. I loved facing Roy – not because he was easy to face, but because he was Roy Halladay and you had to be completely, absolutely all in or else you were out. You were pretty much out, anyway. But he was one of my favorite guys to face because of that. Because of the competitiveness. Because of what he brought to the table and what you knew you had to bring to the table. He was someone I had such a great deal of respect for.

"I remember people saying there was a close pitch at some point. I don't remember there being a close pitch. It was a 3-2 count, but the last pitch was a breaking ball or a change-up of some sort. I don't remember specifically, but I remember it being low, for sure."

With two outs in the third, Reds relief pitcher Travis Wood hit a sinking line drive to right, but Jayson Werth was well-positioned to make a sliding catch. Shortstop Jimmy Rollins went into the hole in the fourth to scoop up Votto's grounder and throw him out. Two innings later, Rollins gloved a hard grounder up the middle and retired pinch-hitter Juan Francisco on a 6-3 putout.

The biggest threat, though, came on the final play of the game. With an 0-2 count, Phillips hit a spinner that landed about 10 feet from the plate. Ruiz threw off his mask and almost tripped over the ball, then reached back to grab it. From one knee he made the throw to Ryan Howard at first to secure the no-hitter.

"I was panicking as I reached for the ball," Ruiz said after the game. "My hand was shaking, it's still shaking. When the ball came off the bat, I had to reach back a little bit to pick it up and throw it, and that's why I went to my knee."

Mackanin: "I don't want to take anything away from Roy Halladay, but the thing that was really impressive was the play that Chooch made to end the game. It was a heck of a play. It took a lot of effort and a lot of skill."

Halladay threw only 104 pitches, 79 of them strikes. A Reds hitter worked a three-ball count just three times.

Werth: "It was like the fastest-paced game. Usually those playoff games, the big games, they go slow. But you couldn't slow that game down. I had kind of a testy play, it was like a sliding play, and that was the only time of the game things slowed down. The rest of it was bam, bam, bam.

"My most vivid memory is the final out. Came flying in to the mound, jumping around Roy. And somehow I ended up face to face with him and he looked at me with these crazy eyes and said, 'What just happened?' And that was perfect. It was basically the feel of the whole thing. What just happened? It went so fast. It was crazy. It was unbelievable. You couldn't have scripted it."

Frank Coppenbarger, director of team travel and clubhouse services, who was responsible for preparing postgame celebrations: "We always keep some champagne in the back room, just in case. If a guy throws a no-hitter or hits for the cycle, something really out of the ordinary, then we bring it out. So I started getting that together, just sort of having it there. Because, you know, as soon as the game ends, they come in.

"We'd have a little bit of a break because, obviously, he'll have a little media work to do out on the field. But you want to have it all set before they ever walk in the door. We had it in hand. That always helps out. But you just to start to think about it.

"The Hall of Fame wanted his jersey. I went to him after all the hoopla had settled down and told him the Hall of Fame had reached out, they'd like his jersey. And he said, 'No problem.' So we FedExed it to them the next day."

Hirschbeck: "Here's a funny story. I came into the umpire's room after the game. I knew I had a no-hitter. And all the suits were in there. They were like, 'Hey, congratulations, that's only the second time.' And I'm like, 'No, it's not. There have been a lot of no-hitters.' They said, 'No, in the playoffs.' I had no idea until they told me after the game."

Dubee: "I told [Halladay] after the game that he keeps pushing the bar awfully high. His first start with us, he gave up one run against Washington. Then he pitches the perfect game. Then we get into the playoffs and he pitches a no-hitter. He just kept elevating the bar.

"I've told people I thought that game, for me, was much more impressive than his perfect game. In Miami he had seven three-ball counts, which was a tremendous amount for Doc because of his command and the way he attacked the strike zone. I didn't think his stuff was as good in the perfect game nor was his command as good. The no-hitter in the playoffs, I'd never seen anything like it."

Manuel: "He had pitched the perfect game down in Miami. Two completely different games. The game he pitched against Cincinnati, he had all his weapons. He commanded all his pitches. He put all his pitches right where he wanted to. It was what you would call a masterful game.

"That might have been the best game I saw him pitch with us, and I had seen him pitch some good ones."

Amaro: "It made me a little emotional. A guy who had been waiting his entire career in the big leagues and had not pitched in a playoff game. And for him to be able to pitch to that level in such a critical moment, I thought that was even more spectacular than the perfect game. I mean, a perfect game's a perfect game. But, for me, that was just an extraordinary moment. I was so glad for him. Someone who strived to be so excellent in his craft, to be able to perform at that level and to lock down his emotions so well. God, he was just a blessing. An absolute blessing."

CHARLIE MANUEL

Outwardly, at least, Halladay seemed unaffected by what he had just done.

Manuel: "Then, of course, after the game he gave a lot of credit to his teammates and Chooch and things like that. He built things around our team instead of taking a lot of credit for it."

Kendrick: "He acted like it was another start for him. Credited Chooch with calling a great game, which he always did. And that was it."

Coppenbarger: "As usual, he kind of shrugged his shoulders. With him, it was always somebody else did all the great stuff. Which was him all the way, always sort of unassuming about all of his accomplishments. He'd credit everybody else and then go back and work out in the weight room or something. That's how it was with him."

In early 2001, Halladay was struggling and the Blue Jays optioned him all the way back to Class A, where his mechanics were completely revamped. There are those who believe there's a straight line between that setback and what Halladay was able to achieve that magical night nine years later.

One is Blue Jays announcer Buck Martinez, who was Toronto's manager when the decision was made to send the former No. 1 draft choice down to Dunedin. He watched the no-hitter from his home in Long Beach Island, N.J.

Another is Price, who is now the Phillies pitching coach.

Martinez: "It was going through my mind as I watched. He didn't like [being sent down]. He wasn't very happy with me and wasn't for a long time. But watching that game was like, 'Wow. It all kind of paid off.' We knew it was there. We knew he had the dedication. We knew he had the work ethic. We knew he had the physical stuff. It was just a matter of creating some deception, some movement. Giving him the ability to throw more strikes. And that's the biggest thing that pitchers fear, throwing strikes. The great pitchers throw nothing but strikes. And Roy became that guy."

Price: "I think a lot of things happened when he made the transition in Toronto. Not only did he come back with a better delivery and kind of a different repertoire, but he also came back in my opinion with a completely different attitude and approach to pitching."

"He was accountable and responsible for everything that happened in the games in which he pitched. You never saw an excuse or a reaction if a fielder didn't make a play or an umpire didn't make a call. He kind of became impervious to the negativity that we all can get involved with when things aren't going our way."

"That stands out more than anything. As good as his stuff was, his demeanor and his professionalism and his intensity and his focus also greatly improved from the time he went to the minor leagues and came back. He became that guy nobody wanted to face because he had the supreme confidence to go with outstanding stuff and command."

Votto: "He was a tremendous performer and someone I hope to remember for my entire life because he was amongst the best, for sure. And that was easily the best performance on a big stage that I think I've ever seen."

Phillies recall unique international experiences as baseball prepares to return to the Olympics

BY KENNY AYRES

Somewhere in a storage unit near Austin, Texas, a small piece of bronze and jade lies neatly tucked away in a lacquered wooden box. For now, it will remain there, but soon it will be displayed prominently in a glass case in Jake Arrieta's new house.

It's not as big as his sleek black and silver Cy Young Award, or as shiny as his diamond-studded World Series ring, but that bronze medal from the 2008 Olympic Games in Beijing holds pretty special meaning to the veteran pitcher.

"It's totally one of my most prized possessions," Arrieta said. "We are planning out kind of a timeline of my career in these glass cabinets, starting with my young years in college then through the minors and pro ball. It's definitely going to be front and center. There are only a handful of people in the world who have something like that."

Those 2008 Games were the last time anybody in the world received an Olympic medal for baseball or softball. That was supposed to change this summer, but the global pandemic has extended the wait for an additional year. Since that last medal ceremony, Arrieta has seen his major league career begin and then flourish – he was only 22 years old when he represented the United States on the world stage.

It was just after the All-Star Futures Game at Old Yankee Stadium when he was asked to play. He was pitching for single-A Frederick in his first professional season. As a highly touted prospect, he joined an assembled team that was unique in that it lacked the bona fide MLB stars, as those players could not leave their seasons.

"We had young prospects, we had older veteran guys who had been around," he said. "It was very different from the experience I had on the national team in 2006, which was just top college prospects. It was nice to have that dynamic, having guys with a lot of big league time, minor league journeymen and future big league stars."

The names ranged from Stephen Strasburg, who was 19 and still at San Diego State, to sidearm reliever Mike Koplove, now a Phillies scout, who played his final major league season the year prior.

When the team arrived in Beijing, they had roughly a week until their own games started. Arrieta recalled taking full advantage of the opportunity to explore the Olympic Village and the other events. One of the first things he was able to experience was perhaps the greatest Olympian of all time competing in what would be a record-shattering Games.

"Tickets were kind of hard to get, we had sign-up sheets in the village, but I got to see Michael Phelps swim once, got to meet him," Arrieta said. "I got to see several of the beach volleyball matches, which were incredible. We got to see gymnastics advance and a couple track and field events, like some of the shorter sprints. We spent a lot of time with the basketball guys, some of the gymnasts. Just to see the different physiques that all these athletes have in their various sports was amazing. There is a guy 6-foot-4, 210 pounds with no body fat running like the wind, then you see a guy 7-foot-5, it's very unique. We embraced meeting other athletes from all over the world and trying to experience as much as we could."

When games started, it was down to business. The United States played seven games in the group stage, going 5-2 and securing a spot in the knockout round. That was when Arrieta made his lone appearance of the Games, on Aug. 18 against none other than the host country, China.

The box score will tell you that he threw 6.0 shutout innings with just two hits allowed and seven strikeouts en route to a win for Team U.S.A. But box scores rarely tell the whole story.

"It was one of the most intense games I have ever been a part of," Arrieta said.

It all started because of a collision at the plate in which Nate Schierholtz ran over China catcher Yang Yang.

"If you look at the picture of that collision you can see Schierholtz and the catcher both with their feet off the ground, very cool picture," Arrieta recalled. "It's fun to talk about because both guys were okay, but we thought both were hurt. The catcher's mitt was 12 feet in the air, I can't even remember where the ball was."

Tensions were high, and seven players were hit by pitches in the aftermath (one of whom was Schierholtz), causing three ejections, including China manager Jim Lefebvre.

The United States won, 9-1, and two days later secured a spot in the knockout round, facing Cuba.

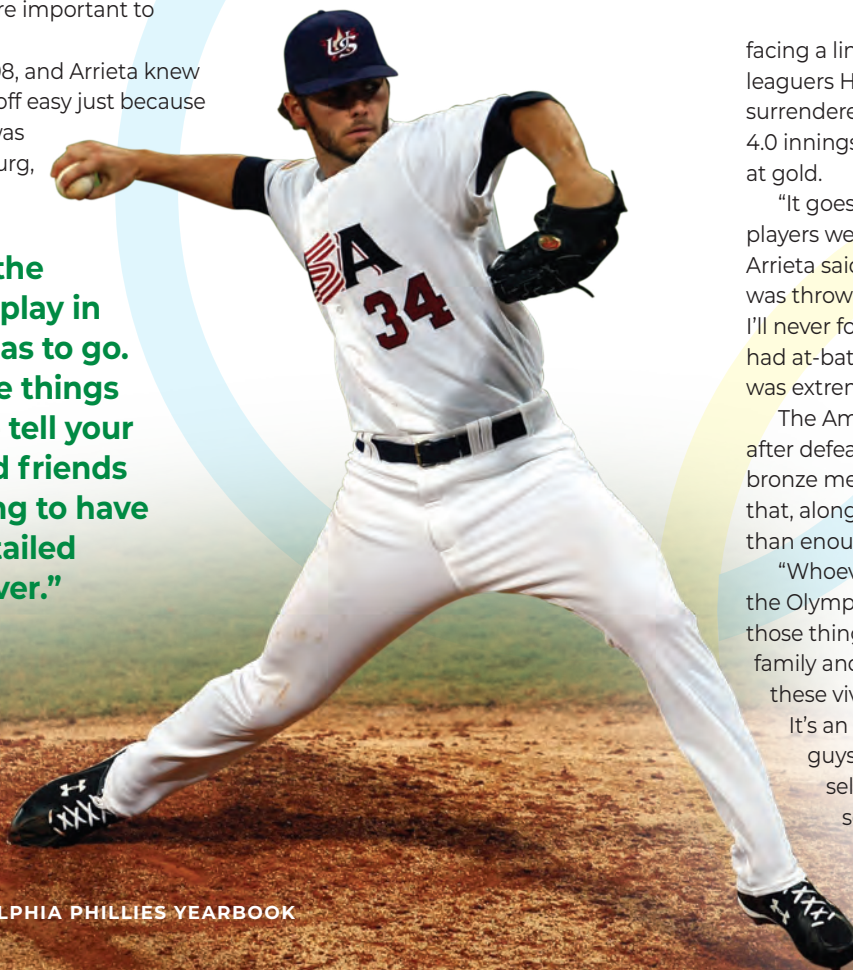

Arrieta was already familiar with the talent of the Cuban team. In 2006, the national team traveled to Cuba for the World University Baseball Tournament. They took home gold, but left impressed by the skills and dedication of the Cuban club.

"The sport of baseball over there is... there is not much more important to them," Arrieta said.

Fast forward to 2008, and Arrieta knew they would not be let off easy just because the college phenom was on the mound. Strasburg,

"Whoever gets the opportunity to play in the Olympics has to go. It's one of those things you're going to tell your kids, family and friends and you're going to have these vivid, detailed memories forever."

JAKE ARRIETA

facing a lineup that included future major leaguers Héctor Olivera and Yuli Gurriel, surrendered three runs on six hits in 4.0 innings as Cuba ended U.S.A.'s chances at gold.

"It goes to show how gifted these Cuban players were, especially hitting velocity," Arrieta said. "At the time [Strasburg] was throwing upper 90s to 102 mph. I'll never forget that, watching the way they had at-bats against Strasburg at the time was extremely impressive."

The American team settled for bronze after defeating South Korea, 8-4, in the bronze medal match. But for Arrieta, that, along with the experience, was more than enough.

"Whoever gets the opportunity to play in the Olympics has to go," he said. "It's one of those things you're going to tell your kids, family and friends and you're going to have these vivid, detailed memories forever."

It's an amazing opportunity for the guys that are fortunate enough to get selected and I really look forward to seeing how it turns out."

The Phillies clubhouse was filled beyond capacity the morning of March 6, 2020, just before the team bus took half the squad to Lakeland for that afternoon's game against the Detroit Tigers while the other half stayed behind to work out.

In that room, Phillies infield coach Juan Castro gathered his stuff before heading out, top prospect Alec Bohm looked at the schedule to see what time the team stretch began, and minor league pitcher Carlos Bustamante hung closely to three other pitchers who were called up from minor league camp for that day's game.

They all went about their business, in that moment giving not as much as a thought to one another. It was a much different story four months earlier.

That day, on Nov. 3, those three men were also in the same place. Bohm was standing at home plate in Estadio Charros de Jalisco in Zapopan, Mexico, leading off the bottom of the ninth. Bustamante was 60 feet, six inches away, trying to make sure Mexico's 8-2 lead over the U.S.A. turned into an easy win. Castro was in Team Mexico's dugout, a lineup card in his hand as he managed the Mexican National Team to its second win of the opening round of the 2019 WBSC Premier12 Tournament – one of the qualifiers for the 2020 Olympics in Tokyo, which have since been postponed to 2021 because of COVID-19.

Bustamante struck Bohm out and retired the side in order. Castro's squad was one step closer to qualifying.

He had been along for the whole process. A longtime manager in the Mexican Winter League and coach for Mexico in the 2013 World Baseball Classic, Castro, known best in Philadelphia for his play at third base to end Roy Halladay's perfect game, was given the honor of managing Mexico's National Team last fall.

"You are representing your country in the Olympics, which is only every four years, and baseball has not been in for a long time," Castro said. "The baseball committee in Mexico asked me if I wanted to [manage the national team], and I was more than happy."

The process looked much different for Castro than for Arrieta, who agreed to play and showed up when training started. Castro and other Mexican baseball personnel were charged with finalizing the roster, a daunting task in and of itself.

"We had 60 guys and we started going over players who should make the team, and at times some didn't have permission to play, some were in organizations in the U.S., some in winter ball. I remember at one point we had like a week left to confirm the team and all of a sudden 14 guys can't play and I'm like, 'Oh my God,'" he said with a laugh.

A week later, he met his 14 pitchers, two catchers, eight infielders and four outfielders in Jalisco, the same state in Mexico where weeks later they would go 3-0 in opening round play to advance to the super round. After the madness of getting the roster set and getting everybody in to begin training, having a familiar environment was a huge bonus for the team.

"It definitely helps when you're training where you're going to play," he said. "And then you start knowing the stadium and the facility, the atmosphere of the field and everything, it was definitely a little bit of an advantage."

That advantage of comfortability works both ways, however. After defeating the Dominican Republic, United States and the Netherlands to advance, Castro and his squad packed up and traveled roughly 6,700 miles to a place that could not have been more different.

"It was my first time in Japan," Castro said. "Tokyo is an awesome city, and definitely a different culture. When we played Japan, the stadium was packed and you could never see the bleachers, all the way from left field to right. The fans were screaming and singing the whole game and I was like, 'Geez, this is different.'"

The super round was a blur for Castro. Mexico went 3-2, finishing third and qualifying for the bronze medal game. The winner of that would be the last of the three teams from the event to qualify for the Olympics. As it turned out, they met the United States again in that match.

Sitting in the opposing dugout was another familiar Phillies face. Bryan Price, the newly minted Phillies pitching coach, was serving as a coach for the U.S. team. Until his hiring by Philadelphia as its 55th manager, Joe Girardi had been at the helm of the club, now led by Scott Brosius.

Price, once a manager himself, could not help but notice the work Castro did with his club.

"What I noticed about Juan was that I felt like he was prepared and knew how to utilize his roster, he knew his players and that's a big part of this," Price said. "You are trying to put together a team and we had about 10 days as a group to get to know each other. It wasn't a long time and you have players from all different organizations and some not even playing baseball in the U.S. – he lives in the U.S. now – but he got familiar with his players and did a great job against us in two different ballgames."

The second game was a much closer one. Trailing 2-1 in the ninth, Mexico's Matt Clark belted a solo home run to tie the game. That sent the game to extras, which began with runners already placed on first and second.

The U.S. didn't score. Castro called for a bunt to start the bottom of the 10th, moving both runners over with one out. Esteban Quiroz was intentionally walked, bringing Efen Navarro to the plate with the bases loaded. He hit a ground ball toward the middle.

"I was nervous, but it was like a different emotion as soon as I saw the ball pass the infield," Castro said. "I felt like a little kid."

After a celebration on the field, the club went back to the Tokyo Dome Hotel, where staff had set up a room upstairs with plenty of food and beer. The players, coaching staff, some general managers from the Mexican League and even team owners from Mexico were there.

"We were still in uniform and everything," he said.

Like Arrieta, the bronze medal itself did not mean everything to Castro.

"The big accomplishment is Mexico is going to the Olympics for the first time ever in baseball," he said. "That was huge for Mexico and huge for all of us that were there on the team, and if we win the gold medal, which I think we have a chance to do, that would be a really great accomplishment for the country."

On the other side of the Tokyo Dome field on Nov. 17, Alec Bohm and his teammates packed up their bags. He watched as the man who would be his infield coach in a few months' time celebrated an Olympic berth.

But Bohm didn't hang his head as his long season came to an end. He reflected on a life-changing experience.

Consider this. Bohm, by some publications the Phillies' top prospect, has had all eyes on his development since he was selected in the first round in 2018. He had, for his whole life, primarily played with people his age and experience level. He had not experienced a season as long as one in the majors could be, factoring in spring training and postseason play. He had not played games in which the stakes were so high with so many people in attendance. His view of the game of baseball was based on only his experiences playing in America.

All of that changed in the span of just a month, and whether he is able to participate in the postponed Games or not, what he took from his experience with the national team will undoubtedly continue to impact him.

It started during the season when Bohm, with double-A Reading, was in Portland, Maine. He got a phone call from Phillies Director of Player Development Josh Bonifay asking if he would be interested in representing the national team in the qualifying event.

"I'm like, of course, why wouldn't I?"

Bonifay explained that it would be a long year with that and the Arizona Fall League, with Bohm playing into November.

"I couldn't have cared less,"

Bohm responded.

So, when his teammates with Reading went home in September, he went to Arizona. When those teammates went home in November, he went to Mexico. There he joined up with a cast of players that included top prospects like Jo Adell and journeymen like 39-year-old catcher Erik Kratz.

"It was awesome, Kratz is such a good dude and you have Clayton Richard, Brooks Pounders, plenty of other veteran guys," he said. "So many guys that have so much experience and all were so helpful, either just by watching and leading by example or coming up to you and talking to you. They had so much knowledge and so much to share and it was really cool to be around them and experience that with some guys who have really been around the block."

With those guys down in Jalisco, Bohm got to get away from the spotlight a little bit. He was able to focus on playing baseball, and not have to worry about what his performance meant for his chances at a promotion or his stock as a prospect.

"You kind of go from being a high-profile professional player that's pretty fresh out of the draft to going into international play where nobody cares about any of that stuff," Price said of Bohm. "At the end of the day we just need to win, so I think it's a great experience because it cuts through all the peripheral stuff that is unimportant and it gets us to focus on a team style of play and the value of preparation and performance. I think he handled himself beautifully."

With the heightened stakes of qualifying for the Olympic Games, Bohm also got to experience a different type of game atmosphere than he was used to. It was that atmosphere that made him call the home run he hit against the Dominican Republic one of "the coolest homers of my life."

"Going through a 140-game minor league season, you can, and I hate to say it, get into the mindset of, 'Well I guess that game didn't really matter, there's always tomorrow,'" Bohm said. "But there, it felt like how you would expect a playoff baseball game to feel. So much more amplified, so much more energy, I felt locked in the whole day. It was different than anything I have ever experienced. I loved it. It brings you up to another level. You just wanted to win, it's all anyone cared about and that made your success in those games feel that much better. It didn't matter if you were 0-for-4, which I was a few times. Nobody cared how well they performed, it was just all about winning so it was a really cool vibe."

"Going to Japan felt like I was at a football game. There were 40,000 people there screaming the whole time and they love it, they absolutely love baseball and that just opened my eyes."

Bohm, who grew up in Omaha, Neb., had not really ever experienced international baseball. Sure, some of his teammates at various levels had been from other countries, but to be halfway around the world, in a country so different from the U.S., and to see the impact that baseball had on its people really opened up Bohm's eyes to the scope of the game.

If you ask him why it is important that baseball and softball are back in the Olympics, his answer now might be very different from the one he would have given a few months back.

"I think after going to Japan my answer has kind of changed," he said. "It's a global game and so many people around the entire world love baseball. I didn't know this and expect this, but going to Japan I felt like I was at a football game. There were 40,000 people there screaming the whole time and they love it, they absolutely love baseball and that just opened my eyes. This isn't really an American thing or a Latino thing, it's all around the world. Baseball is a lot more global than some people think. I loved being part of it and it's something I would do at the drop of a hat any time."

Phillies legend Mike Schmidt reflects on his Hall of Fame career and more

BY JIM HOGAN

More than 2,000 different players have taken the field wearing a Phillies uniform since the franchise began playing in 1883. Michael Jack Schmidt stands alone as the greatest of all Phillies for his remarkable, unmatched playing career. After 18 seasons (1972-89) with Philadelphia, Schmidt's long list of achievements served as the red carpet for his induction into the National Baseball Hall of Fame in 1995. The former third baseman was named Most Valuable Player of the National League three times, made 12 All-Star teams and won 10 Gold Glove Awards along with six Silver Sluggers. He was also selected as MVP of the 1980 World Series, helping the Phillies capture their first championship in franchise history. The right-handed slugger – who hit 548 home runs and posted a .908 OPS over 2,404 career games – remains the club's all-time leader in games, runs, home runs, RBI, extra-base hits, total bases, walks, intentional walks, sacrifice flies and walk-off home runs.

Not only does he remain atop the list of Phillies greats, but he is unquestionably one of the best players in the game's storied history. In many ways, he is the standard by which all other third basemen past and present are compared. No other NL third baseman has ever won more Gold Glove Awards than Schmidt. And no third baseman in the history of the game has ever hit more career home runs than he did. Try finding a more complete player at the hot corner.

Schmidt, who turns 71 in September, took time to reflect on his legendary career by sharing some memories and answering a few questions.

This year is the 40th anniversary of the 1980 World Series championship team. As you sit here now, what sticks out most to you about that team?

"The refusal to lose."

The Phillies trailed in all three of their NLCS victories against Houston, along with their first three wins of the World Series against Kansas City. The Game 6 clincher was the only victory of the 1980 postseason that did not require a comeback.

Who was the toughest pitcher you ever faced?

"Nolan Ryan."

Schmidt's career stats vs Ryan (regular season and postseason combined), via the Elias Sports Bureau: .179 AVG (10-56), two doubles, five home runs, 15 RBI, 21 walks, 16 strikeouts, .405 OBP, .482 SLG.

Who was the best teammate you ever had?

"A few of them. Obviously, Garry Maddox, best friend. Pete Rose, created more confidence, made me a more confident player than anybody."

What was the most memorable All-Star Game you appeared in?

"1981 following that long strike period that we had. They started off the second half of the season with an All-Star Game in Cleveland, and I hit a game-winning home run in that game."

Aug. 9, 1981 at Cleveland Stadium. Schmidt hit a two-run homer in the top of the eighth inning off future Hall of Famer Rollie Fingers. The blast gave the NL a 5-4 lead and the eventual victory. Fingers won both the AL Cy Young and MVP Awards in 1981, posting a career-best 1.04 ERA while allowing just three homers to the 297 batters he faced.

Aside from being a National Baseball Hall of Famer, which of the following accolades mean the most to you: 12 All-Star appearances, three MVPs, 10 Gold Glove Awards or six Silver Sluggers?

"Three MVPs, by far... All three of the other ones added together don't combine to beat those three MVPs."

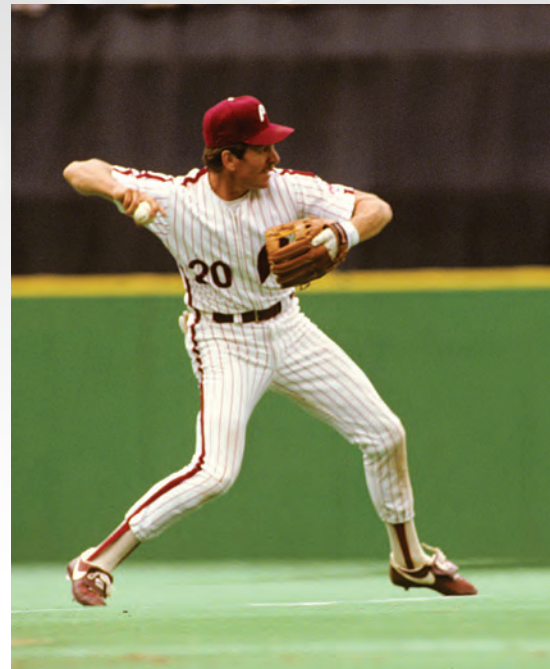

Schmidt won the NL MVP in 1980, 1981 and 1986. He also finished third in NL MVP voting in 1976 and 1983.

April 17, 1976 at Wrigley Field. You hit four home runs in that game. What do you remember most from that day?

"Probably the friendship that Dick Allen and I had. The way he reached out to me prior to that game. I think he saw me sulking a little bit. Worried. I had been dropped in the batting order to sixth. That actual game I had been dropped from either three or four, which I normally hit, down to sixth."

Before the start of the game, Allen asked Schmidt to stay back while the rest of the team left the clubhouse.

"He told me that he wanted to see a smile on my face that day and wanted to see me have more fun playing the game. He wanted to see me enjoy myself on the field more than I was projecting. I tried to do my best to do that and it turned out pretty good."

Schmidt became just the third player in franchise history to hit four home runs in a game, joining Ed Delahanty (7/13/1896) and Chuck Klein (7/10/1936). He homered in each of his final four at-bats from the fifth to the 10th inning. The Phillies trailed 13-2 after four innings but rallied to win 18-16 in 10 innings.

Why did you wear No. 20?

"I started off as No. 22 when I got called up to the major leagues. Then there was a player by the name of Roger Freed who played for the Phillies back prior to me getting to the big leagues. He was dropped from the roster... He had No. 20, and they assigned that to me."

The Phillies retired Schmidt's No. 20 on May 26, 1990.

CATCHING UP WITH NO. 20 IN 2020

If you played in today's game during one of your prime years, how many home runs do you think you would hit in a full 162-game season?

"That's very subjective. It's just an opinion. If you discount the fact the pitchers are bigger and throw harder, and generally have four pitches. Relief pitching is such a big part of the game today and all of the things they have available to them through analytics and things like that. If you put all of that aside and how it might affect my performance, and you just look strictly at the size of ballparks and the ball being a little bit harder, traveling a little bit further and the bats and all that kind of stuff... If you add all of that into it, probably about 10 more a year. I used to fly out to the warning track at Vet Stadium 25, 30 times a year right against the fence. So, you gotta figure around 10 of those would probably drop over the fence nowadays." He then paused, adding with a laugh, "Conservatively speaking."

Schmidt's career high was 48 home runs in 1980, when he led the majors. He also hit at least 40 home runs in 1979 (45) and 1983 (40), and posted 13 seasons with 30 or more home runs. To this day, Schmidt's 548 career home runs rank 16th on MLB's all-time list.

Had it not been for baseball, what do you think you would have pursued as a career?

"I'm not sure. I went to college to become an architect. My interest in going to Ohio University, where I went, was because they had a great architectural school."

His commitment to baseball made it difficult for him to stick with architecture, which is why he eventually changed his major to business administration.

The Phillies selected Schmidt in the second round (No. 30 overall) of the 1971 amateur draft.

Was there a specific baseball player you idolized as a kid? If so, who was that player?

"The Cincinnati Reds were 50 miles down the road from where I grew up. And back then, you didn't have access to teams around the country like they do now. Through social media and the Internet and all that, I mean, you could have a favorite team anywhere in the country. You'd know more about their players and have more access to information obviously. Frank Robinson, Pete Rose, Johnny Bench, that whole crowd down in Cincinnati. You go back to the early days, when I was a kid, Ted Kluszewski and Vada Pinson... We only got to watch them Sunday afternoon. They only had black-and-white TV and a game on Sunday afternoon. One camera over home plate, and that's about it. These guys, these major league baseball players, were like gods to us. We had baseball cards. That's where we got our information, basically, from baseball cards. So those were my favorite guys. My dream players."

If you could pick just one person who was most influential in your Hall of Fame career, who would it be?

"My wife. I truly believe if it weren't for my wife and the person that she is and making it possible for me to dedicate the time and effort and all of that. You have a degree of selfishness. You have to have that in order to reach the heights that I would think the Hall of Fame players do, you know what I mean? You have to have someone that understands. Someone that makes sacrifices to allow you to have that selfishness. And basically, what that means is that there are times in life where you put your career, your energy to becoming great ahead of some of the things that are more important in life."

What Phillies player on the roster now do you most enjoy watching?

"I'm typical. If I were watching a game, I probably wouldn't go get a beer if Bryce Harper was coming up to hit," Schmidt said, also mentioning Rhys Hoskins. "To me, it's because that's where I hit in the lineup. That's the kind of player that I was when I played. I have a lot in common with those guys in terms of their role on the team, the pressure they're under. If they hit, we win. If they don't hit, we don't win. But probably I relate to Rhys Hoskins more than any hitter on the team. We're very similar in hitting style and what his role is on the team and mine when I played."

You have served as a Phillies broadcaster in recent years. How much do you enjoy being in the booth with a headset on with the guys?

"I love it. To me, it keeps me a part of the Phillies family. It has allowed me to project an accurate perception of me as a person.

I think over my career I had this up-and-down perception of me as a person based upon what I did on the field, how I handled things, how I carried myself on the field, how I related to the media. I think I probably projected a different perception of me as a person. I'd say half the people loved me and half the people maybe didn't," Schmidt said with a chuckle. "That changed obviously as I got older and reached certain things in my career. But this role that I'm in right now, not only the television part of it but the other role that I have with the Phillies that involves marketing and sort of the ambassadorial role that I have now, allows me to project a real me. Without it, I don't know that I would have ever passed on without sort of correcting the wrong image that I portrayed for my career. I'm more like a normal guy now. More like a fan. I'm more able to communicate with people and show that I just basically want to be a normal guy."

Schmidt was a Phillies broadcaster in 1990. He returned to the Phillies booth in 2014 to work Sunday home games. From 2015-18, he also worked Saturday home telecasts.

What do you want Philadelphia fans to always remember about you?

"I think just that they might realize that I was more like them than they ever dreamed of, than they ever thought. A lot of the times the things that would make me a lot like them were done behind closed doors. Training in the offseason [or doing] preparation for games. I had the desire to win and hustle and do all the things on the field that for some reason I think the fans thought a lot of that stuff came easy for me. And that I wasn't working as hard behind the scenes to be a great player as a lot of the players that they loved like Luzinski and Dykstra and Rose.

The Phillies have a promising third baseman in Alec Bohm. What, if any, advice about the position would you give to him?

Schmidt briefly met Bohm before the young slugger received his Paul Owens Award in September 2019. He told Bohm to be patient and look for improvement and confidence. (At the time of the interview, he had not yet had a chance to work one-on-one with Bohm.)

In your ideal all-time home run derby, you could pick four sluggers to watch. Who would you choose (from any generation)?

Schmidt named Babe Ruth, Barry Bonds, Mark McGwire and Sammy Sosa, then added Mike Trout.

What is your favorite thing about the City of Philadelphia?

"The passion of the sports fans in Philadelphia. I realize all of that and what it means to the city now much more so than I did as a player."

"The projections of certain players on the field are different to fans. You look down there and you see a certain attitude that guys have on the field. Some guys look like it comes easier to them and other guys look like they're putting more into it. And I understand that. It's a perception that people have of different players. I have it myself as I look down there. Man, I wish he would show more emotion. I wish he would play to the crowd more often. I wish he would have more fun when he was playing. These are things I see on the field. They're just normal impressions that fans get of players. Baseball is one of those games, unlike basketball or football, where fans think every player on the field is killing themselves to try to win a game. And in baseball, one guy looks like he's hustling, another guy looks lazy, another guy is diving and running into fences. The projection of a player on a field can be a lot different. And they also get to watch them every day for seven months. So, fans get an opinion of players and a lot of times it's hard for them to change."

TOP 10 PHILLIES PROSPECTS

THE PHILLIES MINOR LEAGUE SYSTEM HAS BEEN SUCCESSFUL IN RECENT YEARS, POSTING A CUMULATIVE WINNING PERCENTAGE ABOVE .500 IN EACH OF THE LAST FIVE SEASONS (2015-19). ONLY FIVE OTHER ORGANIZATIONS CURRENTLY HAVE SUCH A STREAK OF FIVE OR MORE CONSECUTIVE YEARS: ARIZONA (2012-19), HOUSTON (2012-19), MINNESOTA (2012-19), LOS ANGELES-NL (2015-19) AND TAMPA BAY (2015-19). PHILADELPHIA HAS TALENT THROUGHOUT ITS SYSTEM, HEADLINED BY A PITCHER AND AN INFILDER IN BASEBALL AMERICA'S TOP 30 PROSPECTS ACROSS THE ENTIRE SPORT.

SPENCER HOWARD RHP

1 Not only is Spencer Howard the club's top prospect, according to Baseball America, but he also entered 2020 as the publication's 27th-best prospect in baseball (one spot ahead of the club's next-best prospect, Alec Bohm). The hype around Howard has grown over the last year, and a lot of it has to do with his highly regarded fastball, which has been clocked at 100 mph and was rated as the best in Philadelphia's system by Baseball America. Last year, despite missing time from right shoulder fatigue, the 24-year-old enjoyed his most successful season. In 15 starts overall, the righty posted a 2.03 ERA and 0.83 WHIP, had a .173 OPP AVG and averaged 11.92 strikeouts per nine innings. His WHIP was the lowest among all Phillies minor league pitchers (min. 70.0 IP). He later continued his sparkling year in the Arizona Fall League, posting a 2.11 ERA with 27 strikeouts while holding hitters to a .137 batting average over six starts for Scottsdale. He was a non-roster invitee to major league spring training this year and made his Phillies debut on Aug. 9.

ALEC BOHM 3B

2 After his first professional season, in which he did not homer and missed time with a left shin contusion, Alec Bohm flipped a switch in 2019 and won the Paul Owens Award, given annually to the best player in the Phillies minor league system. The 24-year-old collected 55 extra-base hits in 125 games last year across three levels while slugging 21 home runs, which tied for the most in the club's farm system. A Florida State League midseason All-Star, Bohm was also chosen to play in the All-Star Futures Game at Progressive Field, starting at third base and batting in the cleanup spot for the National League squad. His breakthrough 2019 season continued in the Arizona Fall League, where he slashed .361/.397/.528 in 19 games for Scottsdale and was selected to participate in the Fall Stars Game. Bohm made his major league debut on Aug. 13, doubling in his first plate appearance.

BRYSON STOTT SS

A standout at UNLV, Bryson Stott was Philadelphia's first-round selection in last year's June draft. The Las Vegas, Nev., native slashed .340/.433/.515 in 171 collegiate games over three seasons and capped off his stellar career by being named a semifinalist for the Golden Spikes Award and a finalist for the Brooks Wallace Award, which recognizes the nation's top collegiate shortstop. He had a smooth transition from college to the professional ranks, appearing in four games with the Gulf Coast League Phillies East club before earning a promotion to Williamsport, where he finished the summer with a 44-game stint. A New York-Penn League All-Star, the left-handed hitter combined to bat .295 with an .885 OPS in his first pro season.

FRANCISCO MORALES RHP

As a 19-year-old for single-A Lakewood, Francisco Morales averaged 12.01 strikeouts per nine innings in 2019. The Venezuelan righty led the club and ranked tied for seventh in the South Atlantic League with 129 punchouts. Armed with a slider that is rated as the best in the Phillies minor league system by Baseball America, Morales limited left-handed hitters to a .196 batting average (30-153) and .564 OPS. An important development from last year was how the 6-foot-4 Morales improved after the All-Star break. In 14 games (seven starts) during the second half, he posted a lower ERA (3.29), WHIP (1.19) and held opposing hitters to a lower batting average (.207) compared to the first half of the season (13 games/eight starts, 4.50 ERA, 1.50 WHIP and .248 AVG).

ADONIS MEDINA RHP

For the second straight year, Adonis Medina attended major league spring training as a non-roster invitee. The invite came following a 2019 campaign in which he had a solid start, posting a 3.32 ERA in his first 11 outings with double-A Reading, where he spent the entire year. That overall performance early in the season helped him get named the starting pitcher for the East in the Eastern League All-Star Game. After struggling in the second half, finishing the year with a 4.94 ERA in 22 games (21 starts), the 23-year-old Medina is looking to bounce back and show everyone why he has consistently been considered one of the club's top prospects over the last few years.

RAFAEL MARCHÁN C

Compliments from a big league skipper, especially one with World Series championships to his name as a catcher and manager, must boost a young player's confidence. Imagine how Rafael Marchán felt during spring training when he was lauded by Phillies manager and former catcher Joe Girardi for his performance blocking pitches behind the dish. Marchán, who appeared in five major league games during spring training in March and was added to the player pool during Summer Camp, showed Girardi and others why he was rated by Baseball America as the best defensive catcher in the Phillies minor league system. Last year, the 5-foot-9 Venezuela native caught 36.5% (31-85) of runners attempting to steal in 70 games (68 starts) between single-A Lakewood and single-A Clearwater.

LUIS GARCÍA SS

Luis García spent last season with single-A Lakewood, leading the team in games played while making 70 starts at shortstop and 55 at second base. At 18, he was the sixth-youngest player to appear in the South Atlantic League in 2019. Despite struggling offensively with a .516 OPS for the year, he did show an extended period of success at the plate, posting a 20-game on-base streak from May 9 to June 1. There is still plenty of promise for the young infielder who, in his first professional season in 2018, won the Gulf Coast League batting title with a .369 average and led the league in hits (62).

ENYEL DE LOS SANTOS RHP

Despite four stints with the Phillies in 2019, Enyel De Los Santos only appeared in five games (one start) for the club. He spent most of the year with triple-A Lehigh Valley, where he made 19 starts and held opponents to a .232 batting average. His 2019 performance did not resemble his 2018 season, when he was chosen as a member of the World Team in the All-Star Futures Game and elected as the starter for the International League in the Triple-A All-Star Game. He also appeared in more games and logged more innings with the Phillies in 2018 compared to last season.

MICKEY MONIAK OF

Routinely one of the younger players at each of his stops over his four-year pro career, Mickey Moniak played most of last season as a 21-year-old with double-A Reading. It was a major step forward for Moniak, who was selected as both an Eastern League midseason and postseason All-Star. The left-handed hitter led the EL in triples (13), was second in extra-base hits (52) and total bases (204), tied for fourth in RBI (67), fifth in slugging percentage (.439), sixth in doubles (28), tied for eighth in hits (117) and tied for ninth in runs (63). Moniak picked up where he left off as 2020 began, slashing .353/.500/.588 in 14 spring training games as a non-roster invitee.

NICK MATON SS

Nick Maton spent most of his third professional season with Clearwater, where he was named a 2019 Florida State League All-Star, before earning a promotion to double-A Reading in August. The 6-foot-2 infielder, who was also selected as a league All-Star in 2018, is quickly ascending through Philadelphia's organization. Maton, 23, played most of the time at shortstop last year, mixing in action at second and third base. The left-handed hitter was invited to major league camp this spring training, posting a .400 on-base percentage in 25 plate appearances.

FLASHBACK

Looking back at memorable moments in Phillies history...

4.5.10

10 YEARS AGO

April 5, 2010

3B Placido Polanco becomes the first Phillie in history to hit a grand slam on Opening Day and sets a club record for most RBI (6) on Opening Day in an 11-1 win at Washington; Roy Halladay earns the victory in his first start as a Phillie.

May 7, 2010

LHP Jamie Moyer becomes the oldest pitcher to toss a shutout (47 years, 170 days) with a 7-0 win over the Atlanta Braves at Citizens Bank Park. Moyer gives up two hits, walks none and strikes out five.

5.7.10

May 29, 2010

RHP Roy Halladay tosses a perfect game, a 1-0 win over the Marlins in Miami. He throws 115 pitches (72 for strikes) and records 11 strikeouts.

5.29.10

July 13, 2010

Managing in his second consecutive All-Star Game, Charlie Manuel guides the National League to a 3-1 win at Angel Stadium, ending the American League's 13-year unbeaten streak.

7.13.10

9.27.10

September 27, 2010

With an 8-0 win over the Nationals, the Phillies win a fourth consecutive division title for the first time in franchise history.

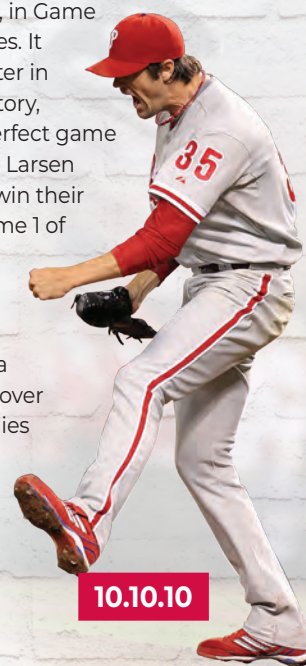

10.6.10

October 6, 2010

In his postseason debut, Roy Halladay throws a no-hitter in beating the Cincinnati Reds, 4-0, in Game 1 of the Division Series. It is the second no-hitter in MLB postseason history, the other being a perfect game by the Yankees' Don Larsen in 1956. The Phillies win their seventh straight Game 1 of a postseason series, tying the NL record.

October 10, 2010

Cole Hamels tosses a 2-0, five-hit shutout over the Reds as the Phillies secure their first postseason series sweep and advance to the NLCS.

10.10.10

4.7.00

20 YEARS AGO

April 7, 2000

LHP Randy Wolf is the winner, 3B Scott Rolen homers and the Phillies prevail, 4-1, in the first game at Houston's Enron Field (now Minute Maid Park).

May 24, 2000

1B Pat Burrell makes his major league debut, going 2-for-5 with a single, triple and two RBI in a 9-7 win at Houston.

5.24.00

November 1, 2000

Larry Bowa is named Phillies manager, succeeding Terry Francona.

11.1.00

30 YEARS AGO

May 26, 1990

Mike Schmidt's No. 20 is retired in pregame ceremonies as the Phillies lose, 12-3, to Atlanta before a crowd of 56,789.

5.26.90

August 15, 1990

Terry Mulholland pitches a 6-0 no-hitter against San Francisco, the first ever at the Vet. It is the eighth no-hitter of the 1990 season, a major league record, and the first of the century by a Phillies pitcher at home.

8.15.90

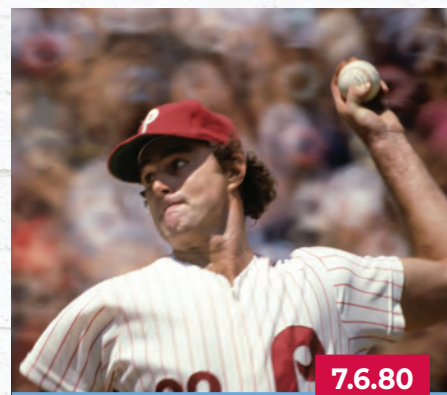

5.11.80

40 YEARS AGO

May 11, 1980

1B Pete Rose becomes the second Phillie in franchise history to steal second, third and home in the same inning as the Phils top the Reds in Cincinnati, 7-3.

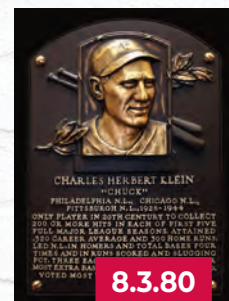

7.6.80

July 6, 1980

Two starts after breaking the club record, LHP Steve Carlton strikes out Cardinals OF Tony Scott in the fourth inning for his 2,833rd strikeout, becoming MLB's all-time leader for left-handers. The Phillies win, 8-3, at St. Louis.

August 3, 1980

OF Chuck Klein, one of the greatest sluggers in Phillies history, is inducted posthumously into the Baseball Hall of Fame by a vote of the Veterans Committee.

8.3.80

October 4, 1980

In a game delayed by rain for more than three hours, Mike Schmidt's two-run home run in the 11th inning secures the NL East title as the Phillies beat the Expos, 6-4, at Montreal's Olympic Stadium.

10.4.80

10.7.80

October 7, 1980

Greg Luzinski's two-run homer in the sixth gives the Phillies a 3-1 win over Houston in Game 1 of the NLCS. It is the first postseason win at home since Game 1 of the 1915 World Series.

10.12.80

October 12, 1980

After the Phillies score five runs off Nolan Ryan in the top of the eighth, the Astros tie with two in the bottom half of the inning. Garry Maddox's RBI double in the 10th wins the Game 5 thriller, 8-7, for the club's third NL pennant.

October 21, 1980

At 11:29 p.m., Tug McGraw strikes out Willie Wilson to give the Phils a 4-1 win and their first world championship before 65,838 fans. In each of the Phillies' four wins, a reliever strikes out a Royals hitter to end the game.

10.21.80

November 4, 1980

Steve Carlton wins his third National League Cy Young Award.

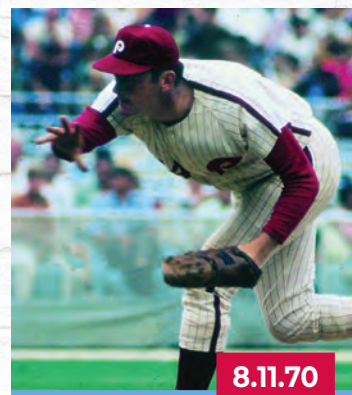

11.4.80

November 26, 1980

3B Mike Schmidt is unanimously voted National League MVP, becoming the first Phillies player to win the award since RHP Jim Konstanty in 1950.

5.2.70

8.11.70

August 11, 1970

RHP Jim Bunning joins Cy Young as the only pitchers to win 100 games in each league with a 6-5 decision in Houston.

10.1.70

October 1, 1970

Phillies edge Montreal, 2-1, in 10 innings on Oscar Gamble's walk-off single in the final game at Shibe Park/Connie Mack Stadium. Opened in 1909, the park was home to the Philadelphia A's (1909-54) and Phillies (1938-70).

50 YEARS AGO

May 2, 1970

In a real rarity, both Phillies catchers, Tim McCarver and Mike Ryan, suffer broken bones in their hands in the sixth inning of a 7-1 loss at San Francisco. Utility player Jim Hutto finishes the game behind the plate.

August 2, 1970

2B Tony Taylor hits an ultimate grand slam (trailing by three runs in the last inning) to give the Phillies a 7-6 win over San Francisco at Connie Mack Stadium.

60 YEARS AGO

January 11, 1960

CF Richie Ashburn is traded to the Chicago Cubs for INF Al Dark, 3B Jim Woods and RHP John Buzhardt.

June 18, 1960

RHP Dallas Green takes the loss in his ML debut, a 7-4 defeat to the Giants at Candlestick Park.

6.18.60

6.7.50

70 YEARS AGO

April 18, 1950

Legendary Dodgers broadcaster Vin Scully broadcasts his first game as the Phillies host Brooklyn at Shibe Park on Opening Day wearing their new, pinstriped uniforms. Robin Roberts defeats Don Newcombe in the 9-1 Phillies win.

June 7, 1950

CF Richie Ashburn begins his club-record streak of 730 consecutive games played.

7.11.50

July 11, 1950

RHP Robin Roberts is the first Phillies pitcher to start an All-Star Game as the NL takes on the AL at Chicago's Comiskey Park. Roberts goes on to start five of the decade's first six Midsummer Classics.

July 27, 1950

RF Del Ennis sets a club record by driving in seven runs in two consecutive innings (seventh and eighth) as the Phillies pound Chicago, 13-3, at Shibe Park.

7.27.50

October 1, 1950

Dick Sisler's dramatic three-run homer wins the pennant for the Phillies in Brooklyn, 4-1. Robin Roberts, making his fourth start in the last nine days, pitches all 10 innings for his 20th win.

10.1.50

10.4.50

October 4, 1950

Because of Robin Roberts' heavy workload down the stretch, manager Eddie Sawyer surprises everyone by naming relief ace Jim Konstanty the starter for Game 1 of the World Series. Konstanty allows one run over eight innings, but Vic Raschi blanks the Phillies on two singles for a 1-0 Yankees win.

November 2, 1950

RHP Jim Konstanty wins the National League Most Valuable Player Award, the first relief pitcher in either league to ever win the honor.

11.2.50

4.16.40

5.28.30

80 YEARS AGO

April 16, 1940

Future Hall of Fame outfielder Chuck Klein begins his third and final stint with the Phillies.

90 YEARS AGO

May 28, 1930

Hall of Famer Grover Cleveland Alexander appears in his final game, pitching two innings of relief in the Phillies' 5-1 loss to Boston at Braves Field.

June 17, 1930

RF Chuck Klein sets a modern club record with a 26-game hitting streak (5/18 (gm 2)-6/17, .486) and later duplicates it (7/12-8/3 (gm 1), .434). In between, he hits in 19 of 23 games. Overall, he hits safely in 71 of 75 games, batting .425 over that span.

100 YEARS AGO

October 3, 1920

Cy Williams finishes the season leading the National League in home runs while securing a quadruple double (36 doubles, 10 triples, 15 home runs and 18 steals).

10.3.20

August 31, 1920

Gambling rumors surrounding the Phillies' 3-0 win over the Cubs help to eventually expose the Black Sox scandal from the previous year's World Series.

IT'S DINNER TIME HERE.

AND TIME TO CELEBRATE HEROES.

Creative chefs are making Winchester, located just a 3-1/2 hour drive from Philadelphia, a favorite spot for food lovers. In this vibrant city in Virginia's Shenandoah Valley, it's not uncommon for heroes to step up to the plate. Like Winchester native Spottswood Poles, a soldier and Purple Heart recipient in WWI, who later became known as the "Black Ty Cobb" after coming to the elite Philadelphia Giants in the Negro League in 1909.

From our past to our present, it's the people who make Winchester great.

VIRGINIA IS FOR LO ERS

Although fans might not be able to come out to Citizens Bank Park, they can still catch all the action of this unprecedented season.

The Phillies are in their 23rd year with the all-sports cable network NBC Sports Philadelphia. NBC Sports Philadelphia is airing 53 games this year and three additional games will be carried on NBC Sports Philadelphia+. All games airing on NBCSP and NBCSP+ are broadcast in high definition and feature "Phillies Pregame Live" and "Phillies Postgame Live" programming.

In addition to the local coverage, the Phillies will make two appearances against the division-rival Atlanta Braves on ESPN's "Sunday Night Baseball" – Aug. 23 at Atlanta and Aug. 30 at Citizens Bank Park, both at 7:08 p.m. Two other matchups with division rivals will be carried nationally by FOX, Aug. 27 at Washington at 6:37 p.m. and Aug. 29 versus the Braves at 1:15 p.m.

Fans can enjoy complete coverage of the Phillies with the My Teams by NBC Sports mobile app. Authenticated NBCSP subscribers can access local market games and pre- and postgame shows, as well as live and on-demand video, podcasts and written coverage, from anywhere in the United States.

For those tuning in on the radio, all Phillies games can be heard on the team's flagship station, SportsRadio 94WIP (94.1 FM), as well as on the 21-station Phillies Radio Network throughout the tri-state area. Game broadcasts are also available through the club's website at phillies.com.

This season, former Phillies outfielder and general manager Ruben Amaro Jr. has joined the television broadcast crew of Tom McCarthy, Ben Davis, John Kruk, Jimmy Rollins, Hall of Famer Mike Schmidt and Gregg Murphy. Scott Franzke and Jim Jackson are once again handling the radio play-by-play duties, with Larry Andersen and Kevin Frandsen splitting the color commentary. Jackson also hosts the pre- and postgame shows on WIP.

For the 16th straight year, Phillies games are being broadcast in Spanish, airing on WTTM (1680 AM), with Bill Kulik and Angel Castillo behind the microphone. Spanish-language broadcasts are also available using the SAP function during Phillies Television Network games.

AT BAT IN OUR COMMUNITY

EACH SEASON, PHILLIES PLAYERS, COACHES AND MEMBERS OF THE FRONT OFFICE MAKE IT A PRIORITY TO GIVE BACK TO OUR COMMUNITY. THROUGH THE UPS AND DOWNS THIS YEAR HAS BROUGHT WITH IT, OUR SUPPORT HAS REMAINED CONSTANT. WE ARE PROUD TO STAND BY YOU AS WE NAVIGATE THESE CHALLENGING TIMES TOGETHER.

Phillies Charities, Inc.

PHILLIES CHARITIES

Phillies Charities, Inc. is the charitable arm of the Phillies organization, serving Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, as well as areas near the Phillies' minor league affiliates. Continued fan support enables fundraisers and many memorabilia auctions to contribute largely to a Phillies Charities Grant Fund. Grants are awarded on a regular basis to primarily local organizations serving a wide variety of needs. In 2019, more than $2 million in grants was distributed.

Phillies Charities has donated over $100,000 in grants this summer to various nonprofit organizations, including the city's Playstreets Program, which provides a safe, fun place for Philadelphia's children to play during the summer months. Other charitable grants were also awarded to the Bethesda Project, Magee Rehabilitation Hospital, Police Athletic League, Sunday Breakfast Rescue Mission and the Tug McGraw Foundation.

Aaron Nola is joined by teammates Zach Eflin and Adam Morgan as he hosts Get in the Game, a celebrity bowling tournament to benefit Philadelphia Futures.

PHANS FEEDING FAMILIES VIRTUAL FOOD DRIVE

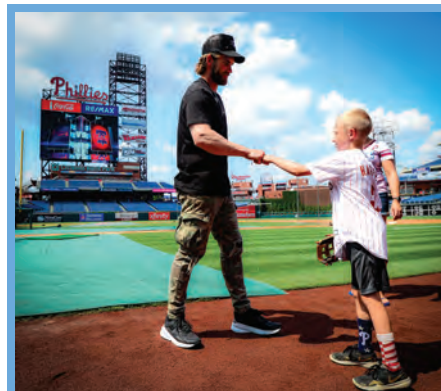

Citizens Bank, Philabundance and the Phillies teamed up for the 10th annual Phans Feeding Families food drive. A hunger relief partnership driven by the Phillies and sponsors, Phans Feeding Families raised $61,555, enough to provide over 120,000 meals to people in need throughout the Greater Philadelphia area.

PHILLIES SALUTE FIRST RESPONDERS

Broadcaster Scott Franzke voiced an emotional viral Toyota Salute to Service recognizing the new heroes of this baseball season – those working on all aspects of the front lines.

PHILLIES CHARITIES 5K

While the 10th annual Phillies Charities 5K couldn't be held in person this year, runners were able to complete their miles virtually or make a donation to Phillies Charities.

It's a dream come true as Bryce Harper meets a fan through Make-A-Wish.

PROVIDING HUNGER RELIEF

The Phillies and their partners distributed thousands of cases of food to 15 Philadelphia-area food pantries that are helping to feed families in need during the COVID-19 crisis. In addition, Philabundance offered a free drive-through emergency food distribution site for several days in a parking lot at Citizens Bank Park.

GAME FACE FAN PHOTO CUTOUTS

Even though fans can't be at the ballpark in person this season, they had the opportunity to cheer on the team by purchasing a fan cutout to be placed in the stands during games at Citizens Bank Park. Net proceeds benefited Phillies Charities.

AT BAT IN OUR COMMUNITY

PHANAVISION MESSAGES

Through a unique, never-before-offered opportunity, fans have the chance to purchase PhanaVision messages for a limited time. Purchases of customized messages displayed on PhanaVision and supported with a digital photo benefit Phillies Charities.

HARPER FAMILY GENEROSITY

Bryce Harper and his wife, Kayla, made a generous donation of $500,000 to help those in most immediate need. The money was distributed between Direct Relief and Three Square in his hometown of Las Vegas and Philabundance.

HOME PLATE PROJECT

Aaron Nola and Neil Walker joined Big League Impact, Major League Baseball and Garth Brooks' Teammates for Kids Foundation to donate $30,000 to Share Food Program through the Home Plate Project. In its second year, the program donates money to help children dealing with food insecurity. Share Food Program is on the front lines in the regional fight against hunger.

CHAMPIONS RISE CHALLENGE

Aaron Nola and Joe Girardi teamed up with Mikie Mahtook to give hope back to young athletes and their families who've been affected by COVID-19. The Champions Rise Challenge was created to offer young athletes and their parents life-changing advice and guidance on how to stay committed, improve performance, and come out ahead during COVID-19.

THE PHILLY PLEDGE

Started by 76ers All-Star Ben Simmons, the Philly Pledge encourages residents of Philadelphia to extend a helping hand to those in need during times of crisis. Benefitting the PHL COVID-19 Fund and Philabundance, the Philly Pledge has been supported by many Philadelphia celebrities and athletes, including Bryce Harper, Rhys Hoskins, Scott Kingery, Andrew Knapp, Aaron Nola and Vince Velasquez.

HEALTHCARE HEROES

The Phillies honored healthcare heroes from Nemours Children's Health System and Jefferson Health as part of the Opening Day "crowd" at Citizens Bank Park, thanks to unique game faces. These high-resolution color cutouts of doctors, nurses and staff were fastened to Diamond Club seats and featured the medical workers in various poses while wearing their respective hospital uniforms and/or Phillies gear.

PHILLIES PARTICIPATE IN ALL IN CHALLENGE

The Phillies donated an exclusive experience at Citizens Bank Park as part of the All In Challenge. The digital fundraising effort raised funds to battle food insecurity brought on or exacerbated by COVID-19.

STAY HOME FOR THE HOME TEAM

Along with partner Independence Blue Cross, Joe Girardi, Bryce Harper, Andrew McCutchen and broadcaster Tom McCarthy filmed a Stay Home for the Home Team PSA.

TIPPING OUR CAPS

Medical workers who are on the front lines of the COVID-19 crisis were in for some lunchtime fun as the Phillies, along with their partners and players, tipped their caps to the countless heroes at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital who have sacrificed so much to keep their community safe.

Former Phillies Milt Thompson and Tommy Greene greet patients from local children's hospitals at the annual Spooktacular Halloween Bash.

GIRARDI THANKS HOSPITAL WORKERS

Joe Girardi thanked hospital workers virtually and urged fans to root for the home team of Thomas Jefferson University and Jefferson Health by donating to Jefferson's COVID-19 Better Together Fund.

VISITING OUR FRIENDS AT NEMOURS

Didi Gregorius, Zack Wheeler and Phillies alum Shane Victorino surprised patients at Nemours duPont Hospital for Children with Q&A sessions via Zoom.

VIRTUAL FUN

Both kid-friendly and Phillies-themed bingo was enjoyed by groups from Brandywine at Longwood Living Facility, Bringing Hope Home, Kisses for Kyle, Michael's Way and Nemours duPont Hospital for Children. The Phillies hosted a dance party and an arts and crafts night for children and their families who are currently battling or have battled cancer. Special guests included the Phanatic, Mickey Morandini, the Phillies Ballgirls and other members of the Phillies front office.

GIRARDI LEADS STUDENTS IN VIRTUAL MATH CLASS

In partnership with The School District of Philadelphia, Joe Girardi worked with the math department to create and teach virtual lessons at Meredith Elementary School. Whether discussing batting averages or potential matchups, Girardi gave the students some background into how math plays a big part in his role as manager.

PHILLIES PHITNESS

Phitness@Home, presented by The GIANT Company, offered workout and training videos featuring Phillies coaches, strength and conditioning trainers and members of the front office. Fans of all ages were able to get their blood pumping by following along while staying at home. Be on the lookout for more Phillies Phitness content during the upcoming school year.

TIPS FROM THE DUGOUT PRESENTED BY CHEVY

As part of Chevy's dedication to supporting youth baseball, the Phillies coaching staff provided videos of drills that kids can practice at home to keep their skills sharp. The drills focused on throwing, catching, fielding and baserunning.

TEACHER APPRECIATION PARADE

A beloved robotics teacher got a major league surprise on May 7 during Teacher Appreciation Week powered by Constellation. Peter Randall, the department chair of engineering and robotics at Springside Chestnut Hill Academy, has been making reusable face shields from 3D printers for medical personnel during the COVID-19 crisis. The Phillies, Constellation and members of the student body returned to school to surprise him with a Phillies All-Star Teacher Drive-By Parade. Randall is one of 10 All-Star Teachers recognized by the Phillies this year.

THE MIDDLETON FAMILY RAISES MONEY FOR PHL COVID-19 FUND

The PHL COVID-19 Fund hosted PHLove, presented by the Middleton Family, a one-time variety show on May 21 to support the fund. Since March 19, the PHL COVID-19 Fund, powered by Philadelphia Foundation and United Way of Greater Philadelphia and Southern New Jersey, has been rapidly deploying critical funds to nonprofits serving on the front lines of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Members of the front office and athletes from Special Olympics Pennsylvania participate in a bocce tournament at Citizens Bank Park.

PHANATIC STORYTIME

During the months of quarantine, fans of all ages were treated to Storytime with the Phanatic presented by Nemours Children's Health. Joe Girardi, Bryce Harper, Rhys Hoskins and Andrew McCutchen were just a few of the special guests who read a book from the Phanatic's book series on Instagram.

STEPPING UP TO THE PLATE

Phillies front office employees participated in an American Red Cross Blood Drive Supported by Budweiser at Citizens Bank Park. The private event was held to help the American Red Cross, which is in dire need of blood donors, especially during the COVID-19 crisis.

COVID-19 TESTING SITE

The Phillies partnered with Jefferson Health to offer drive-through COVID-19 testing outside of Citizens Bank Park for a period beginning at the end of March.

Manager Joe Girardi, Zach Eflin and General Manager Matt Klentak welcome patients from Nemours duPont Hospital for Children, Children's Hospital of Philadelphia and St. Christopher's Hospital for Children for a sleepover in the Phillies Clubhouse.

AT BAT IN OUR COMMUNITY

Several players lend their support to help raise money for the Pennsylvania SPCA at the third annual Puppapalooza at the Pier.

J.T. Realmuto spends time with a patient at Nemours duPont Hospital for Children.

MCDONALD'S OPENING NIGHT

Although fans couldn't be there in person to receive their McDonald's Opening Night T-Shirt, they were made available to purchase to benefit families at Ronald McDonald Houses in the tri-state area.

YARD WORK WITH MICKEY MORANDINI PRESENTED BY CITIZENS BANK

Phillies Ambassador Mickey Morandini provided instructional videos for youth baseball and softball players from Citizens Bank Phan Field.

Rhys Hoskins and the Phanatic welcome participants to the 2019 MDA Muscle Walk of Greater Philadelphia.

BLACK LIVES MATTER

In the wake of the peaceful protests against systemic racism, the Phillies posted Black Lives Matter-themed messages, logo and banners in solidarity on their social media accounts. On June 13, members of the Phillies front office volunteered alongside community leaders and stakeholders and joined the Urban League of Philadelphia in a clean-up project in West Philadelphia. Titled "Black Minds on Market," the project brought together many in the community to heal, restore and empower one another. Opening Day featured a Black Lives Matter pregame ribbon ceremony, along with the Black Lives Matter logo stenciled on the mound.

NEGRO LEAGUES

This year marks the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Negro Leagues. The Phillies continue to celebrate the Philadelphia Stars and on August 16, joined MLB and teams throughout Major League Baseball in paying tribute to these pioneers in baseball.

PRIDE MONTH

Throughout the month of June, the Phillies posted pride-themed messages, logos, banners and wallpapers on social media in recognition and celebration of Pride Month. On June 23, Phillies personnel attended MLB's virtual panel discussion "Working OUT at MLB," which examined the LGBTQ+ work experience within the baseball industry. Phillies personnel attended the Independence Business Alliance's virtual annual meeting on June 30, which brought together LGBTQ+ business leaders and allies to reflect on the year's accomplishments.

SUMMER SLUGGER

Launched in April, Summer Slugger is a continuous and engaging learning experience focusing on math and literacy skills that uses the game of baseball to encourage students of all backgrounds to stay on track during the school year and the summer months.

THE DISCO BISCUITS, LIVE NATION AND THE PHILLIES RAISE MONEY FOR PLUS1 FOR BLACK LIVES FUND

Philadelphia's own The Disco Biscuits took to the field on June 23 for a free, live-stream performance from the infield dirt at Citizens Bank Park. Viewers were encouraged to donate to the PLUS1 for Black Lives Fund. The fund is centered on empowering black communities, transforming the criminal justice system and building equitable and dignified systems.

Several players and their wives meet with an ALS patient and his family at the Phillies Phestival.

PHILLIES PHESTIVAL

Since the Phillies adopted the ALS Association Greater Philadelphia Chapter as their primary charity in 1984, over $19 million has been raised to provide research, care and services for patients. A total of $768,020 was raised at the 2019 Phillies Phestival, the annual autograph and auction party to help strike out ALS.

The Phillies Wives join the organization in volunteering their time at the annual Phillies Phestival.

PHILLIES WIVES

The Phillies Wives are committed to giving back and lending their time and efforts to support local charities. Each year, several of the Phillies Wives serve on the board of Phillies Charities, Inc. and work together to represent the club on charitable projects or fundraisers.

The Phanatic leads the way as community volunteers spend the day planting 215 home run trees.

HOME RUNS FOR TREES

For each home run hit by a Phillies player during the season, a tree will be planted as part of Home Runs for Trees, a partnership with PGW and the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society. Over 1,200 trees have been planted in the Delaware Valley since the inception of the program.

RED GOES GREEN

To offset the carbon footprint created by the team's utility power usage at Citizens Bank Park, the Phillies purchase over 20 million kilowatt-hours of Renewable Energy Credits (RECs) each season, matching 100% of electricity usage with wind generation. This is the 13th straight calendar year that the Phillies have purchased 100% renewable energy.

HENRY GOT COMPOST

Food waste from all Phillies kitchens is composted through W.B. Saul High School's "Henry Got Compost" student composting initiative. Students are introduced to and participate in the hands-on process of composting.

PLAYING FIELD RESTORATION

Members of the Phillies front office joined The GIANT Company, in partnership with Stonyfield, to convert a children's playing field at Fernhill Park in Germantown to an organically managed area.

MILITARY

The Phillies are committed to honoring all the men and women who have served or continue to serve our country. Over 68,000 tickets were donated to members of the military, veterans and their families in 2019. Members of the military, veterans and their guests receive a discounted ticket offer on select Phillies games through GovX.

Army Specialist Macey Smith is introduced as a Rothman Hometown Hero for her service and dedication to our community.

PHANATIC ABOUT READING

During the 2019-2020 school year, 80,000 children participated in the Phanatic About Reading program presented by Xfinity, which encourages students in grades PreK-8 to read for at least 15 minutes per day to improve their literacy skills.

Students at St. Peter Cathedral School are treated to a special mystery reader when Rhys Hoskins makes a surprise visit to the school to celebrate their reading achievements.

AT BAT IN OUR COMMUNITY

Manager Joe Girardi joins members of the front office in serving a holiday meal at Bethesda Project.

SEASON OF GIVING

The annual Season of Giving allows the Phillies to continue outreach efforts during the offseason through events such as the Bethesda Project Holiday Luncheon, Breakfast with the Phanatic, Clubhouse Sleepover for local children's hospitals, Ford PAL Holiday Party, Giving Drive at Valley Youth House and Thanksgiving Dinner at Hope Lodge.

PHILLIES MLB URBAN YOUTH ACADEMY

The Phillies MLB Urban Youth Academy, sponsored in part by the local Chevrolet dealers, provides free, year-round instruction to RBI participants in Philadelphia through both the baseball and softball fields at FDR Park and the Ryan Howard Training Center, which is located at the Marian Anderson Recreation Center.

Roman Quinn greets an RBI participant after leading a free baseball clinic hosted by local Chevy dealers at the Phillies MLB Urban Youth Academy Ryan Howard Training Center on the MLK Day of Service.

SUMMER OF GIVING PRESENTED BY THE GIANT COMPANY

The Phillies and The GIANT Company teamed up to host their annual Summer of Giving, featuring unique contact-less events that celebrated healthcare heroes, as well as organizations that provide valuable services to those in need.

- The Phanatic made a special lunchtime trip to Nemours duPont Hospital for Children, where he helped distribute 100 boxes of Seasons Pizza to the hospital's healthcare heroes. Workers at Jefferson Health also received Seasons Pizza that day as well.
- More than 250 doctors, nurses and staff, along with their families, from Nemours Children's Health System and Jefferson Health were treated to a Phillies Healthcare Heroes Virtual Appreciation Night. The special event featured a guest appearance by a former Phillie, along with plenty of Phillies fun and surprises, including prizes from The GIANT Company.
- Other events included a Phillies Virtual Bingo, where members of St. Joseph's Manor nursing home had a chance to play this popular game with host Scott Palmer and a former player. Highlights also included a much-needed break for families battling illness, thanks to a Virtual Movie From Home Night, with families receiving a free baseball-themed movie and lots of movie-time snacks, courtesy of The GIANT Company. With the help of Team Foster, the team also hosted a Virtual Family Feud Night for Marines and Air Force, Navy and Army personnel and their families.
- Also taking place was a Phillies Family Toy Drive, with front office employees donating toys to be distributed during the holidays to organizations helping children in need.

RBI COACHES CLINIC

The Phillies hosted a coaches clinic for local youth baseball and softball coaches from the Phillies RBI program. The clinic allowed 50 coaches the chance to brush up on their coaching skills and learn drills that they can pass along to their players. Instructors included Phillies alum Milt Thompson, the baseball and softball coaching staff from the University of the Sciences and coaches from the Phillies RBI and Youth Academy programs.

BLACK HISTORY MONTH

In celebration of Black History Month, the Phillies Urban Youth Academy hosted a panel discussion for members to learn more about the history of Negro League baseball and the Philadelphia Stars. The panel featured Mahlene Duckett (daughter of Mahlon Duckett, a member of the Philadelphia Stars), Wilmer Reid (former Negro Leagues player and current scout for the Phillies) and Milt Thompson.

SIGNING DAY

The Phillies Urban Youth Academy hosted a signing day celebration for their members who signed their official letter of intent to colleges where they will be continuing their athletic careers. The Phillies congratulate all the Urban Youth Academy seniors and wish them all the best in the future.

JR. RBI/RBI BASEBALL AND SOFTBALL

The Phillies support over 4,000 youth baseball and softball players through their RBI (Reviving Baseball in Inner Cities) program. Uniforms and equipment are just some of the resources provided to local leagues.

Members receive a photo of the Phillies lineup card from their first game that can be redeemed at the Fan Club kiosk behind right field in the Yard, plus other membership benefits. A 10% discount is included for the New Era Phillies Team Store. The kiosk will remain open for 1½ hours after scheduled first pitch. Newborn Club packages can be purchased on phillies.com/kidclub.

Phanatic Phood Cart (near Kids Zone behind Section 112) and Phanatic Kid's Corner (behind Section 318, Terrace Level) – Concessions offering kid-sized portions. Available when gates open until the 7th inning.

Phanatic Phun Zone – Sponsored by Cavity Busters, this play area is located inside the First Base Gate plaza for children 8 and under (a junior Phanatic Phun Zone is available for kids 2 and under).

Sunday Starting Nine – Kids 14 and under who wear Phillies colors to the ballpark on Sundays could be randomly selected for this unique experience. Nine lucky youngsters will be introduced pre-game and stand on the field with the nine Phillies starters for the national anthem.

The Yard (right field in Ashburn Alley) – A major league experience for kids! This interactive area features Citizens Bank Phan Field (a Wiffle Ball field complete with dugout and bullpen), a Phanatic Climbing Wall, Hatfield Phanatic Hot Dog Launcher, Bullpen pitching area and concessions just for kids, including an Ice Cream Bar at the Yard.

ANNIVERSARY PACKAGE – Guests can celebrate their anniversary with their names in lights on the scoreboard. The $40 package also includes Phillies stemless wine glasses. A limited number of packages are available per game. At least five days in advance registration is required by calling Ticket Services at 215-463-1000. Guests can check in at the Birthday Check-In desk located behind Section 123.

ATMS – For the convenience of our guests, there are eight Citizens Bank ATMs located throughout the ballpark.

BACHELOR/BACHELORETTE PARTY PACKAGE – NEW! Available for most Fridays and Saturdays, the package includes a discounted game ticket, $28 concession coupon and “Phinal Swing Before The Ring” T-shirt for each person, along with a “special welcome” on the side scoreboards. Minimum purchase 15 tickets. Two seating locations offered: Scoreboard Porch ($50 per person) and Hall of Fame Club ($100 per person). Must arrange in advance by contacting Group Sales (215-463-5000 or grouptickets@phillies.com).

BALLPARK DESTINATION AREAS

Ashburn Alley: Festive outfield entertainment area named in honor of Phillies legend Richie Ashburn; 625 feet in length covering 50,000 square feet. Area opens two hours early so fans can watch batting practice. Highlights include:

- Right Field: The Yard, a 13,000-square-foot interactive kids' baseball experience complete with Citizens Bank Phan Field (a 70-foot Astroturf-covered field), a Hatfield Franks Hot Dog Launcher, a 30-foot Phanatic Climbing Wall, Bullpen pitching area and the Ice Cream Bar at the Yard. Also located in this area is the Ballpark app check-in desk.

- New: Yuengling Party Pavilion, a new gathering area near Sections 106-108 offering Yuengling Traditional Lager and other ice-cold Yuengling beverages. The perfect place to hang out near right field.

- Other Alley highlights: Phillies All-Star Walk, bi-level bullpens, Rooftop Bleacher seats, the '47 Alley Store and more food options.

- Features oversized World Series trophies, as well as statues featuring Phillies retired numbers.

- Phillies championship banners are also on display, as well as the Phillies Wall of Fame presented by Toyota.

- New: Leinenkugel's Left Field near Sections 140-141, offering Leinenkugel's and other ice-cold beverages. An ideal location to enjoy the game.

- New: Miller Lite Liberty Landing bar area behind Sections 142-145 offering Miller Lite, food and a variety of beer, wine and spirits. Open to the public, this is another great spot to watch the game.

- Other highlights: Boardwalk Eats, a concession area with boardwalk-style concessions, plus the popular Bull's BBQ where fans can meet 1980 World Champion Greg “The Bull” Luzinski, and Harry the K's.

Third Base Plaza – Pass and Stow, Shake Shack & Liberty Bell:

- In 2019, the Phillies and Aramark transformed 24,500 square feet of space into Pass and Stow, featuring an outdoor beer garden and bar, Foundry Pizza serving brick-oven pizza, a family-friendly sports pub, 44 TVs to catch game action and more.

- Other highlights include the iconic 19-foot-high Liberty Bell that was once located atop Veterans Stadium, which is prominently displayed as fans approach the ballpark.

- Pass and Stow is a historic nod to the Liberty Bell, which has been part of the Phillies brand and logo for many years. The name is derived from the two Philadelphia foundry workers, John Pass and John Stow, who recast the original bell in 1753, and whose names are inscribed on this important piece of American history.

- Adjacent to Pass and Stow is the 6,000 square-foot Shake Shack, which for the first time brought its sit-down restaurant experience to a sports venue, with seating for 120 fans. This popular modern-day “roadside” burger stand serves its classic burgers, crinkle-cut fries, hand-spun shakes and more.

BIRTHDAY PACKAGE – For $30, guests can celebrate birthdays at Citizens Bank Park with scoreboard recognition, an Entertainment Staff member visit and a special hat from the Phillies. Birthday packages are subject to availability and advance registration is required by calling Ticket Services (215-463-1000). Once at the game, guests should check in at the Birthday Check-In desk located behind Section 123 or at the Advance Ticket Window marked “Birthday Check-In” located on the Terrace Level. A $20 package is also available and includes scoreboard recognition and the special hat.

BUDWEISER RESPONSIBILITY HAS ITS REWARDS PROGRAM – Guests who would like to be their group's designated driver can pledge at kiosks located at the First Base, Third Base and Left Field Gates until the end of the first inning. Anyone who signs up will receive a voucher for a free fountain soda or Budweiser Zero non-alcoholic beer. In addition, one lucky fan per night will receive a Budweiser Prize Pack.

CONCESSIONS – Food and beverages are available throughout the ballpark at permanent locations, numerous portable stands and two restaurants. The concessionaire is a joint venture involving Aramark, the Phillies and World Wide Concessions. For a listing of gluten-free options and healthier ballpark fare, please visit phillies.com.

CREDIT CARD POLICY – American Express, Discover, MasterCard and Visa are accepted at ticket windows, restaurants, concession stands and merchandise locations throughout the ballpark.

ELEVATORS – There are 15 elevators conveniently located throughout the ballpark.

ENGAGEMENT PACKAGE presented by Golden Nugget Jewelers – For $450, guests receive live, in-game coverage of their proposal on PhotoVision, four tickets to the game (best available), a champagne toast (must be 21 or over) and a downloadable video link of the event. The engagement package must be scheduled at least one week in advance and is not available on Sunday games. To schedule, call Ticket Services (215-463-1000).

ESCALATORS – There are three sets of escalators in the ballpark.

FIGHTIN' PHILS FAN CLUB – The Fightin' Phils Fan Club is the official adult fan club of the Phillies. Memberships can be purchased online at phillies.com/fightinphil and include two (2) complimentary tickets for a future home game, access to exclusive events and much more. The Standard Membership tier includes MLB Audio for your computer and the Premium Membership tier includes access to MLB Audio for your computer and supported mobile device. Complimentary tickets are for select dates and must be redeemed through the members-only site.

FIRST AID – First aid stations are located on the Main Concourse (behind Section 105) and the Terrace Level (behind Section 318). Each location is staffed with medical personnel. If medical assistance is needed, please notify the nearest Phillies personnel, proceed to the nearest location or call the Guest Services Hotline at 215-218-5469. Fans may also notify personnel by texting “PHILLIES” [space] followed by the issue and location to 69050.

GIFT CARDS – Gift cards may be purchased at the ticket windows, New Era Phillies Team Store, on phillies.com or by calling 215-463-1000. Gift cards may be redeemed for tickets, concessions and Phillies merchandise.

GIVEAWAY POLICY – The Phillies' policy is to distribute one giveaway item per eligible fan entering Citizens Bank Park. An eligible fan is a fan that meets advertised age limits or other requirements (i.e. All Kids 14 & Under on a kid's promotion). Eligible fans must receive the item prior to clearing the gate/distribution area. The Phillies are not responsible for any items once they leave the gate/distribution area. Lost or stolen items will not be replaced. Extra/unused tickets for a game may not be redeemed for giveaway items. The Phillies do not make giveaway items available for sale. Giveaway items are not licensed through Major League Baseball Properties and therefore cannot be sold at retail. Remaining giveaway items are liquidated for charitable purposes through the Phillies Community Outreach Department. For more information, please contact the Phillies Merchandise Department by sending an e-mail to merch@phillies.com.

GUEST CODE OF CONDUCT – Please join the Phillies in creating a fun, safe, family atmosphere at Citizens Bank Park by not:

- Interfering with other guests' ability to enjoy the game;
- Using/displaying foul or abusive language or gestures;
- Appearing to be intoxicated or in a diminished capacity;
- Failing to produce a ticket upon request or sitting in a seat that does not match your ticket;
- Entering the playing field or interfering with a ball in play;
- Entering the seating area while play is in progress;
- Smoking;
- Throwing objects onto the field or within the ballpark; or
- Otherwise being disorderly.

Violators are subject to ejection and possible arrest. Repeated offenses will result in the loss of ticket privileges.

Alcoholic Beverages – Alcoholic beverages may not be brought into nor taken out of Citizens Bank Park. Guests may be requested to provide photo I.D. when purchasing alcoholic beverages.

Bags – In an effort to expedite entry, guests are discouraged from bringing bags to the ballpark. If a bag is necessary, each guest is encouraged to bring one single compartment bag into the ballpark (e.g. tote bag, drawstring bag, reusable shopping bag). Bags can be no larger than 16" x 16" x 8" and will be subject to inspection upon entry in accordance with Major League Baseball security regulations.

Banners & Signs:

Composition. Banners and signs must (a) utilize only cloth, paper or other light, flexible materials, rather than be comprised of or supported by wood, metal or other hard materials that could be dangerous in a crowded public setting, (b) not be affixed to or draped over any part of the ballpark structure and (c) be no higher than 4 feet or longer than 8 feet.

Display. Banners and signs may be displayed (a) within the ballpark's seating area, (b) in a stationary manner, (c) so as not to unduly obstruct any person's view of the playing field or interfere with player or umpire sight lines and (d) so as not to obscure ballpark signage. Only one sign or banner may be displayed at any one location.

Subject Matter. Recognizing that Citizens Bank Park is a baseball ballpark and not a forum for public discussion, messages on banners and signs may relate solely to one or more of the following subjects, without any unrelated collateral content whatsoever: (i) the game and institution of major league baseball; (ii) a major league baseball team; (iii) the on-field activities and performance of a major league baseball player, coach or manager; (iv) the acts or omissions of the management and other non-player employees of a major league baseball organization, but only to the extent that such acts or omissions may relate to or affect its team's on-field activities and performance; (v) the entity broadcasting a baseball game played at the ballpark and the acts or omissions of the announcers in doing so; and (vi) fans' birthdays, engagements, weddings, anniversaries and health. Additionally, banners and signs may not bear a message that (i) is slanderous, (ii) is obscene, vulgar or indecent and inappropriate for viewing by children, (iii) contains “fighting words” likely to provoke a breach of the peace, (iv) contains commercial advertising or commercial product or service identification, or (v) contains derogatory matter relating to race, color, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, religion, national origin, ancestry, physical handicap, marital status or age.

Removal. The Phillies reserves the right to require the cessation of any display of a banner or sign that does not conform to these limitations.

Bottles, Cans, Coolers – To ensure the safety of our guests, glass bottles, cans, hard-sided and Styrofoam coolers, thermoses and open containers may not be brought into the ballpark. Exceptions: unopened plastic bottles (non-alcoholic), baby bottles and single-serve, soft-sided juice containers and soft-sided coolers that do not exceed the 16" x 16" x 8" size requirement may be brought into the ballpark after inspection.

Cameras/Camcorders – Hand-held video cameras and still cameras for personal use may be brought into the ballpark, provided no game action is recorded in accordance with Major League Baseball regulations. Please be courteous to those guests around you when taking pictures. Camera cases must fit into a bag template and will be inspected prior to entrance into the ballpark. Tripods and monopods are prohibited.

Cell Phones – Cell phones are permitted inside the ballpark provided they do not interfere with another guest's enjoyment of the game.

Distribution of Materials – All of the following are expressly prohibited on the private property of Citizens Bank Park or in the parking areas that surround it:

- Distribution of leaflets or other printed materials.
- Distribution of products or performing of services, whether for consideration or free.
- Taking surveys or otherwise interfering with the free movement of guests.
- Solicitation, whether charitable, business-related, or otherwise.

Fan Texting – Guests who would like to discreetly notify game-day staff of guest services issues (e.g. security needed, spilled drink, medical issue, etc.) may do so by texting “PHILLIES” [space] followed by the issue and location to 69050. For example: PHILLIES drink spilled in section 123, row 15. Text messages are received and responded to by Phillies personnel during all home games.

Foul Balls – Guests are welcome to keep any foul balls hit into the stands. Please do not interfere with a ball in play, especially those guests sitting at field level. Major League Baseball rules call for the ejection of guests that interfere with a ball in play.

Metal Detectors – All guests are subject to metal detection screening (walk-through units and/or handheld wands) before gaining access to Citizens Bank Park. To expedite ballpark entry, it is not necessary to remove cell phones, cameras, keys or coins. Single-compartment bags are encouraged and should be opened prior to inspection. The First Base, Third Base and Left Field Gates have “Express Lanes” for those guests who do not bring bags to the ballpark. A supervisor should be notified if a guest does not wish to walk through a metal detector. Guests with pacemakers should never be hand-wanded. Strollers and wheelchairs will be directed to side gates for visual inspection. Guests are encouraged to take prohibited items back to their vehicles. Items left at the gates are not the responsibility of The Phillies.

GUEST INFORMATION

Prohibited Items – Guests may not bring any of the following into Citizens Bank Park:

- Cans, glass bottles and open containers;
- Bags or backpacks larger than 16" x 16" x 8";
- Alcohol or illegal substances;
- Hard-sided or Styrofoam coolers or thermoses;
- Firearms, knives or other weapons;
- Balloons, beach balls, noisemakers, nets or laser pointers;
- Brooms, poles or tripods/monopods;
- Any other device that may interfere with and/or distract the players, fans or telecast of the game.

Any such items should be returned to their vehicle and/or discarded. All fans are subject to metal detection procedures and a bag search before entering the ballpark. Fans who are not comfortable with metal detectors will be subject to a pat-down.

Radios/TVs – Personal radios and television sets with headphones are permitted inside Citizens Bank Park.

Re-entry – There is a no re-entry policy at Citizens Bank Park.

Risks of Baseball – Guests assume all risks and dangers inherent in and incidental to attending a baseball game, whether occurring prior to, during or subsequent to the actual play, including but not limited to injury from thrown or batted balls, thrown bats or fragments thereof and spectators' conduct. Accordingly, neither The Phillies nor their opponent nor any of their respective players nor the City of Philadelphia nor their respective employees, independent contractors and agents shall in any way be liable therefore. Guests must be vigilant at all times and must recognize the many elements that can distract their attention from the game, including but not limited to the video boards and scoreboards and the activities of the Phillie Phanatic and others.

Smoke-Free Facility – Smoking is not permitted inside Citizens Bank Park. Violators may be ejected.

Strollers – Fold-up strollers should be stored under your seat during the game. If you have a stroller that does not fold up, please check it at Guest Services located behind Section 122 on the Main Concourse and behind Section 318 on the Terrace Level.

Tailgating – Tailgating is only permitted in the parking areas south of Pattison Avenue and east of Darien Street, which includes Lots A-H and J-N. Tailgating is not permitted in lots west of Darien Street and north of Pattison Avenue.

Umbrellas – Umbrellas are permitted inside Citizens Bank Park. Please be considerate of guests around you when using an umbrella.

Unmanned and Remote-Controlled Aircraft Systems – The use of unmanned and remote-controlled aircraft systems (drones) at Citizens Bank Park, including its surrounding parking areas, is prohibited at all times. In addition, the FAA prohibits use of such aircraft systems up to 3,000 feet above the ground and within three nautical miles of Citizens Bank Park beginning one hour before to one hour after an event. Violations of this policy may result in a fine and/or arrest and imprisonment for up to one year.

Weapons – Firearms, weapons, knives, tasers and other dangerous or hazardous devices or substances (collectively "weapons") are prohibited at Citizens Bank Park, unless carried by an on-duty police officer or otherwise expressly approved by The Phillies. Anyone bringing such a weapon to the premises should return it to their vehicle immediately. An off-duty law enforcement officer who is carrying a weapon may check it at the Police Room before entering the ballpark.

GUEST SERVICES – Located on the Main Concourse (behind Section 122) and the Terrace Level (behind Section 318), Guest Services will assist you with questions, concerns and requests for information. Open from the time the gates open until 15 minutes after the game ends. If immediate attention is needed, or if someone is interfering with your enjoyment of the game, please call the Guest Services Hotline at 215-218-5469 or text the word "PHILLIES" [space], with issue and location to 69050.

LOST AND FOUND – To report or claim lost articles, contact Phillies personnel or visit Guest Services located on the Main Concourse (behind Section 122) and the Terrace Level (behind Section 318). Found items will only be held for 10 days. For information, guests may call 215-218-5440.

Lost children will be escorted to Guest Services. If the child is unable to provide information to reunite the two parties, a picture of the child can be displayed on PhanaVision.

MERCHANDISE

New Era Phillies Team Store – Located adjacent to the Third Base Gate, the expansive team store, featuring official Phillies merchandise, is open daily from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. On game days with a start time of 1:05 p.m. or earlier, the store can only be accessed from the concourse with a game ticket. The store is closed on major holidays. Enter from inside the park during events (behind Section 134) or outside during non-event times (on Citizens Bank Way). For merchandise information, call 267-570-2333. Follow on Twitter @philliesNestore.

• Personalization Station – First floor of the New Era Phillies Team Store. Personalize Phillies jerseys, caps and bats.

'47 Alley Store – Located in Ashburn Alley. Official Phillies merchandise location featuring apparel and headwear from official retailer '47. The store also features Phanatic plush dolls along with Bull's BBQ items, on-field and player name & number apparel.

Phillies Authentics – Located on the Main Concourse (behind Section 133). Featuring game-used collectibles and autographed memorabilia authenticated through Major League Baseball's Authentication Program along with a selection of Phillies publications, baseball cards and various other baseball publications. Limited selection of items available in the Player's Clubhouse at the New Era Phillies Team Store. Follow on Twitter @PhlAuthentics.

The Cap Shop – Located on the Main Concourse (behind Section 137). Featuring headwear for men, women and kids by New Era and '47.

Home Stands – Official Phillies merchandise is also available behind Sections 121, 207 and 326 along with the First Base Gate Plaza, Hall of Fame level behind Section 226 and the Diamond Club.

Memorabilia Store from Hunt Auctions – Located behind Section 111 on the Main Concourse. Featuring premium quality baseball memorabilia such as autographed baseballs, baseball cards and signed jerseys, with a concentration on Phillies merchandise. Also features unique vintage offerings such as pennants, ticket stubs, pins and yearbooks.

The Yard – Located in The Yard entertainment area on the Main Concourse behind Section 102, this location features a variety of kid's items.

Scorecard Kiosk – Located on the Main Concourse (behind Section 126). Featuring Phillies publications, baseball cards, various other baseball publications plus a limited selection of game-used memorabilia.

NURSING LOUNGE – The Cavity Busters Nursing Lounge is a private area for nursing mothers and babies located on the Main Concourse behind Section 125.

PARKING – There are a number of parking lots for preferred, pre-paid, cash and accessible parking (see parking map on page 214). It is recommended that guests arrive early and park in the first available lot. Please check phillies.com regarding events and construction projects that affect traffic in the Sports Complex area. For the latest traffic information for Pennsylvania and New Jersey, please dial 511 or visit 511pa.com or 511nj.org.

PHILLIES CHARITIES, INC. – Phillies Charities, Inc. (a Section 501(c)(3) organization) is the charitable arm of The Phillies. It raises funds in a variety of ways such as the annual Phillies Festival, Phantastic Auction and Phillies Charities 5K. In addition to major support of the Greater Philadelphia Chapter of the ALS Association, grants are made each year to a wide variety of primarily local charities. For more info, go to phillies.com/community.

PHILLIES CHARITIES 50/50 DRAWING – Through the Phillies Charities 50/50 drawing, one lucky fan will walk away a winner! Fans may purchase a 50/50 drawing ticket at every home game from any of the kiosks located throughout the ballpark. Ticket sales begin when gates open and close immediately after the seventh inning. For more information, visit phillies.com/raffle.

PHILLIES FIRST GAME CERTIFICATE – For kids 14 and under attending their first game at Citizens Bank Park, individual certificates are available for free at Guest Services (behind Sections 122 and 318).

POW-MIA NATIONAL CHAIR OF HONOR – Located in Section 110, Row 40. Serves as a permanent reminder of the nearly 90,000 Americans who have gone missing or become prisoners of war while serving their country.

PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION/SEPTA – SEPTA's Broad Street Line is the absolute best route to all the events at Citizens Bank Park. NRG Station is located at Broad and Pattison – a short walk (about 7 minutes) to Citizens Bank Park. SEPTA operates Sports Express service on the Broad Street Line, making stops at these stations: Fern Rock Transportation Center, Olney Transportation Center, Erie, Girard, Spring Garden, Race-Vine, City Hall, Walnut-Locust and NRG. Riders can also travel from City Hall to NRG Station in about 11 minutes on the frequent local service. The average trip time from Temple University/Cecil B. Moore is 19 minutes on local trains. Immediately following the conclusion of events, fans can find northbound trains waiting to provide local and express service back toward Center City and Fern Rock Transportation Center. All Regional Rail Lines, the Market-Frankford Line, PATCO and many trolley and bus routes provide convenient connections with the Broad Street Line. Free weekend parking is available at most Regional Rail lots. Fans can also travel to Citizens Bank Park via SEPTA Bus Routes 4 and 17. For more information, visit septa.org or call 215-580-7800.

RAIN DELAYS/INCLEMENT WEATHER – The right to postpone the playing of a game is controlled by the home club with the exception of the final series between two clubs, at which time the responsibility shifts to the Umpire-in-Chief. Once a game has started, the Umpire-in-Chief determines if a game should be suspended, when it can be resumed or if it should be terminated because of bad weather or unfit playing conditions. The Official Playing Rules provide that when a game has been temporarily suspended, umpires must wait at least 30 minutes before calling the game. On days when inclement weather is in the forecast, tune to SportsRadio 94WIP or log on to phillies.com for updates on the game status. For weather updates, fans can also text the keyword "PHILLIES WEATHER" to MLBGO (65246), follow @phillies on Twitter, or go to phillies.com/ weather. Please visit phillies.com for more details.

RESTROOMS – A total of 63 public restrooms are conveniently located throughout the ballpark. All are wheelchair accessible.

SERVICE ANIMALS – Animals are prohibited from being brought into Citizens Bank Park with the exception of a service animal accompanying a guest with special needs in attendance.

SPECIAL EVENTS – Looking for a unique place to host your next social or corporate event? Citizens Bank Park is available on non-game days for selected events. For information, call the Phillies at 215-218-5100 or email specialevents@phillies.com. For game-day parties and meetings, contact the Phillies Group Sales Office at 215-463-5000 or grouptickets@phillies.com.

TAXI SERVICE – Guests needing help placing a call for taxi service can stop at Guest Services located behind Section 122 on the Main Concourse and behind Section 318 on the Terrace Level. Taxis are often available at the end of each game at the corner of Citizens Bank Way and Pattison Avenue (outside the Third Base Gate).

TELEPHONE – A public pay phone is located inside the Left Field Gate.

TICKET INFORMATION

Mobile Ticketing – The MLB Ballpark app allows easy entry into Phillies games at Citizens Bank Park (including Sports Complex parking) via your mobile device. With the app, you can browse inventory, forward tickets to others, and use for entry into Citizens Bank Park. If you have questions regarding your mobile tickets, please contact Ticket Services at 215-463-1000.

To access your tickets from your mobile device:

- Download the MLB Ballpark app via the iOS App Store or the Android Google Play Store
- Use the email address from your ticket purchase to log in and view your tickets.
- Access your tickets via the "WALLET" tab to view the barcode that you will scan when entering Citizens Bank Park.

Group Outings (for groups of 25 or more) – Group discounts, phundraising options, private suites, club decks, and hospitality areas are available. Contact the Group Sales Office at 215-463-5000 or go to phillies.com/grouptickets for information.

In-game – Ticket windows are located on the Main Concourse (behind Section 124) and the Terrace Level (behind Section 318).

In person – Ticket windows are located near the First Base Gate on Pattison Avenue. For all home games, additional ticket windows will be open on Citizens Bank Way.

MLB Ballpark App – Your mobile companion when visiting Citizens Bank Park. With this free app, access your tickets; enter Citizens Bank Park with tickets on your mobile device; upgrade your seat and ballpark experience; unlock offers and content by checking in to games; receive notifications for exclusive stadium offers via iBeacon technology; view your check-in history and add pictures to the Journal; explore the park with interactive concourse maps, directories and concession menus; find out your favorite player's walk-up music, with the ability to purchase songs on your iPhone; order food and beverages directly to your seat; access club rewards programs and more.

Official Game – A game becomes official after four and a half innings, if the Phillies lead. Otherwise, five full innings must be completed before it is considered a regulation game.

Perfect Pitch Pizza Parties for Kids – Prior to most Saturday and Sunday home games, our party room hosts multiple birthday groups. Package includes 10 Field-Level tickets, a one-hour pregame party with a light menu of pizza, cupcakes and beverages for 10 people, appearance by an Entertainment Staff member, birthday name in lights and more! Contact the Group Sales Office at 215-463-5000 or grouptickets@phillies.com.

Re-entry – Tickets do not entitle the holder to re-enter the ballpark after leaving the ticketed area.

Will Call – Orders placed over the phone or via the internet within seven days of the game may be picked up any time after ordering at the ticket windows located at the First Base Gate, or on the day of the game at any available ticket window. For identification purposes, guests should present their driver's license and credit card used for their ticket purchase when picking up their tickets.

Ticket Re-Selling – Tickets may not be resold on the private property of Citizens Bank Park or in the parking areas that surround it and tickets associated with such transactions are subject to confiscation. (This prohibition is in addition to all restrictions and prohibitions imposed on re-selling by law.) In many cases, tickets offered for sale by re-sellers are misrepresented, counterfeit or stolen.

Theme Nights – Phillies Theme Nights, such as Youth Baseball & Softball Celebrations, Scouts Day and Greek Heritage Celebration, provide fans the chance to come together with others who share similar backgrounds and interests. Many Theme Nights also include a unique giveaway item or experience, available only to fans who purchase a Theme Night ticket. Go to phillies.com/themenights for a complete listing. Tickets must be purchased through the Theme Nights webpage.

Wheelchair and Companion Seating – Wheelchair and companion seating is available in the following areas: Field Level, Pavilion/Arcade Level, Scoreboard Porch and Terrace Level. Companion seating is available alongside the spaces for guests using wheelchairs at a maximum 3:1 ratio (3 companions per wheelchair). Folding chairs will be provided for companions. Check phillies.com or call 215-463-1000 for seating availability.

TOURS – Public and group tours are available year-round. Tours will not be scheduled on Sundays, major holidays, or when there are day games at home. Guests can purchase public tour tickets (Adults: $13; Seniors & Children 3-14: $8) at phillies.com or by calling Ticket Services (215-463-1000). Accommodations for group tours (groups of 25 or more) can be arranged by calling 215-218-5360.

VETERANS MEMORIAL – To commemorate the site of Veterans Stadium, the Phillies built a monument as an everlasting memorial to veterans. Located on Pattison Avenue, it includes the American flag along with flags and bronze plaques representing the Army, Marine Corps, Navy, Air Force, Coast Guard and POW/MIA.

WATER FOUNTAINS – Twenty water stations each containing two fountains (one standard and one wheelchair accessible) are located throughout the ballpark.

WHEELCHAIR SERVICE – Fans who need assistance to their section can request wheelchair service at any of the entry gates. Phillies staff will escort them to their section and are available postgame for the return trip to the gates. Ask any Phillies employee for assistance.
